U.N. Secretary Returning from Tunisian Parley

Hammarskjold Handed Snub by French for Alleged Favoritism

TUNIS, Tunisia (AP) — Dag Hammarskjold is returning to New York today with an earful of Tunisian complaints and a snub from the French, who accused him of showing favoritism toward Tunisia in the Bizerte crisis.

Pursuing his customary policy of uncommunicativeness to newsmen, the U.N. secretary-general said nothing about any recommendations he might be taking back to the Security Council. The council is expected to meet soon after his return for further discussion of the crisis between France and Tunisia.

Hammarskjold was rebuffed in an attempt to see the French commander in Tunisia, and the French foreign office said it would be useless for him to visit Paris. The French attitude marked a further deterioration in relations between France and the world organization, of which President Charles de Gaulle has grown increasingly contemptuous.

Hammarskjold, who came here at the invitation of Tunisian President Habib Bourguiba, said he hoped "common sense and human wisdom" would prevent any further fighting around the French naval and air base at Bizerte.

De Gaulle's government, pointedly ignoring the U.N., said in a statement Wednesday night it wanted peace talks soon "between French and Tunisian authorities."

Hammarskjold had written Foreign Minister Maurice Couve de Murville complaining because France had not complied with the Security Council resolution calling for withdrawal of French troops that occupied Bizerte city.

Couve de Murville in reply noted Hammarskjold's presence in Tunis at Bourguiba's invitation and said his letter "seems to me to expose the views of the Tunisian government." A government statement said the French forces would not quit Bizerte city — which lies astride the channel between the Mediterranean and the base — until peace is assured and the base's communications are guaranteed.

Tension continued in the battle-scarred city, where French gun emplacements aimed the wall of Casbah still held by Tunisian troops. But the Tunisian government, after repeated warnings that a resumption of fighting was inevitable, appeared to be concentrating on diplomatic warfare.

The Tunisian government long one of the staunchest allies of the West in the Arab world, underscored a swing away from the West.

Information Minister Mohamed Masmoudi made a point of announcing that Tunisia's relations with Red China were closer than ever. He emphasized that President Gamal Abdel Nasser of the United Arab Republic, once Bourguiba's bitter enemy, had promised aid.

Bourguiba's right-hand man, Bahi Ladgham, conferred with the Soviet ambassador to Tunisia.

Barber Proposes Swap to Dentist

KANSAS CITY (AP) — Dale Gasper, 24, needs an upper dental plate and he wants to make a deal with some dentist.

He'll give a dentist two years of barber service in return for the chompers.

Gasper said a dentist placed the cost of a plate at $150. He figures 52 haircuts, 52 tonic massages and 26 shampoos are worth $171.

"I've got four sons to feed," Gasper said Wednesday. "They're good eaters. The way our food bills run, it wouldn't be easy to scrape up $150. And I need those teeth now."

IN BLACK AND MIGHT — West Berlin border guards read a newspaper account of President Kennedy's speech on the Berlin crisis. In the background is the famed Brandenburg Gate.

Kennedy's Domestic Program Seen Curbed by Berlin Issue

WASHINGTON (AP)—President Kennedy apparently has put in jeopardy part of his New Frontier program by his call for additional defense spending.

Spurred by the popular support Kennedy aroused in taking his case to the nation Tuesday night, Congress is in the process of giving him the $3,454,000,000 he asked—plus a year's authority to boost military manpower—as speedily as its ponderous machinery can operate.

But the enthusiasm with which members of both parties are backing the chief executive in the buildup of arms strength in connection with the Berlin crisis is

Household Warning Gear Is Perfected

KANSAS CITY, Mo. (AP)—An air raid warning system for households, mentioned by President Kennedy in his speech to the nation Tuesday night was developed at the Midwest Research Institute in Kansas City.

The device, called the National Emergency Alarm Repeater, is a little box that can be plugged into an electrical outlet in any home and can be sold for less than $10.

Henry Brown, electronics engineer at the Office of Civil Defense Mobilization in Battle Creek, Mich., confirmed Wednesday that President Kennedy was speaking about NEAR.

Dr. Charles N. Kimball, Midwest Research president, said: "All the research and development has been done. The next step would be putting it into production."

However, in order to operate the alarm system, power substations would have to be equipped with generators to convert part of the regular 60-cycle power into the special signal.

Dr. Kimball and Harold L. Stout, who has been in charge of the project, said the equipment could be installed nationwide at an expense of $1 a home.

Earlier this month Midwest was awarded an $80,000 contract for a study in Detroit with the objective of installing the system. The pilot study will cover the southern half of Michigan.

Governor Books Conferences With John, Robert Kennedy

COLUMBUS, Ohio (AP)—Gov. Michael V. DiSalle plans to confer with President Kennedy at noon next Wednesday, then discuss with Atty. Gen. Robert Kennedy the recent wave of bombings in northeast Ohio.

The governor plans to fly to Washington Wednesday morning and return that night.

DiSalle said he asked for the conference with the President to discuss:

1. Civil Defense, in order to "get a clearer concept of what is expected on the state level as a result of the transfer of the operation into the Defense Department."

2. Ohio's bid to get a proposed experimental electronic highway built on the Columbus-Cincinnati leg of the north-south freeway. The governor said both Ohio senators and most House members are supporting the state's bid.

3. A continuing lag in Buckeye state employment and the long-matched by the misgivings with which many view the fiscal future.

Republicans have taken the lead in demanding domestic economies aimed at pruning what they say otherwise may be a deficit in excess of $5 billion for the fiscal year ending next June 30. Conservative Democrats are talking in the same terms.

The Republican Congressional Committee said in a statement Wednesday night that "the President can't have it both ways" and "must shelve unnecessary civilian spending for the duration of the international emergency."

"We cannot afford the fat of social experimentation at this time if we are to develop the sinews of survival," the statement said.

Sen. Harry F. Byrd, D-Va., called in Kennedy to turn his attention immediately to "curtailment of all non-defense expenditures . . . which may be desirable but not absolutely necessary."

Kennedy has established a fairly good batting average in combatting the traditional Republican-Southern Democratic coalition and getting Congress' approval of legislation dealing with distressed areas, housing, minimum wage, Social Security and unemployment compensation.

But the increased military outlays have injected a new element in this contest—the prospect of a whopping budget deficit or increased taxes in 1962, when all House seats and one-third of those in the Senate are up for grabs in the election. Kennedy has left the tax question open but said he wants a strictly balanced budget next year.

Town Flying Flags For Berlin Crisis

CENTERVILLE, Iowa (AP) — Flags were flying in the business district of this southern Iowa city today as an expression of support for President Kennedy in the Berlin controversy.

A 200-word telegram to the President, signed by civic leaders, said that flags would continue to be flown daily until the Berlin crisis was resolved, one way or another.

term effects of automation on employment.

The governor said he wants to discuss "the 70 to 75 recent unsolved bombings in the Youngstown, Warren, Canton and Steubenville areas." He added:

"This number of unsolved bombings has to be evidence of syndicated activity."

The day after he returns from Washington, the governor plans the first of his public speeches to discuss what he terms the shortcomings — particularly financial — of the Republican-controlled legislature.

The first speech probably will be before a political science class at the University of Dayton, but the hour has not yet been fixed, according to Jerry Poston, assistant to the governor.

The Middletown Democratic Club is sponsoring DiSalle's evening appearance, an event in speech at Le Sourdsville Lake, an amusement park on Ohio 4 between Middletown and Hamilton.

Castro Orders Creation of Single Party

Visiting Red Spaceman Says Soviet Armed Help Assured Cuba

HAVANA (AP) — Cuba today winds up a mammoth four-day celebration of the eighth anniversary of Fidel Castro's revolution highlighted by Castro's announcement that all Cuban organizations will be merged into a single "United Party of Cuba's Socialist Revolution."

(Castro's announcement had been predicted several weeks ago and observers in the United States said the single party, when it is formed, would be dominated by the Communists.)

The prime minister made his announcement during a 3½-hour speech before hundreds of thousands of Cubans who wildly cheered him and Soviet spaceman Yuri Gagarin.

The Soviet major, launching out into international politics for the first time since he orbited the earth, denounced the United States and pledged to Cuba "the armed help of the Soviet people."

Castro followed Gagarin to the platform as the crowd shouted "down the Caimanera!" — the Cuban name for the U.S. naval base at Guantanamo Bay in eastern Cuba.

The prime minister first attacked the U.S. press for predicting he would mark the 26th of July anniversary by announcing plans for a single political organization. A few minutes later he told the crowd Cuba was headed toward one over-all Socialist party embracing all organizations in the island country—military, political, labor and others.

Castro did not say when such a party would be proclaimed but indicated its formation would be gradual.

Castro also said he would return the Eastern Air Lines plane hijacked by an armed passenger Monday if the United States promises to return any Cuban planes that might be seized and flown to the United States in the future.

(There was some doubt as to exactly what Castro meant since at one point in his speech, as heard in Key West, Fla., he also mentioned "planes that were stolen from Cuba," suggesting he also wanted the return of planes seized in the past.)

(As recorded in Key West, this was what Castro said: "The Cuban government is prepared to return the plane, if, in turn, the North American government binds itself to return any plane that from now on is hijacked and taken to its territory. That is to say, that to our disposition to return the plane must correspond their disposition to return our planes that are hijacked and taken from here. The Cuban state is not to blame if a Yankee plane is stolen and the Cuban government has no obligation to return those planes if the North American government does not return the planes that were stolen from Cuba.")

Hillsboro Student Wins Medical Scholarship

COLUMBUS, Ohio (AP) — The $2,000 Rural Medical Scholarship, set up 13 years ago to encourage an interest in the study of medicine among young men and women in Ohio's non-metropolitan areas, has been awarded to 21-year-old Thomas H. Mallory of Hillsboro.

The Ohio State Medical Association said Mallory, son of a school teacher who also operates a small farm, will use the annual scholarship at Ohio State University's College of Medicine.

Drunk Driver Duplicates

LOUISVILLE, Ky. (AP)—Charles Dierking, 59, was arrested twice in the same day for drunken driving — 10 hours apart. In traffic court Wednesday he was fined $100 on the first arrest and $150 on the second.

U.S. Diplomat Team Starts Work on Berlin Proposals

WASHINGTON (AP) — The diplomatic phase of President Kennedy's Berlin preparedness program picks up tempo today with the departure for Paris of a U.S. team headed by Assistant Secretary of State Foy D. Kohler.

In advance of Kohler's takeoff, Secretary of State Dean Rusk scheduled a mid-afternoon news conference at which reporters planned to ask about further steps in Kennedy's broad program of counter measures against the worldwide Communist threat.

Kohler and a half dozen aides will meet with diplomatic teams from Britain, West Germany and France to do advance work on the Western Big Four foreign ministers conference to be held in Paris August 5-8. Rusk leaves for the French capital next week.

At Paris, the Western foreign affairs chiefs will go over a broad range of the strategies aimed at keeping West Berlin out of Communist hands.

From Kennedy's standpoint, a major task was to get the North Atlantic Treaty allies to step up their defense efforts to the allies have responded favorably to Kennedy's ideas, but it remains to be seen what action they will take.

The President hoped that his increased of U.S. defense levels by $3,454,000,000 and 217,000 men would serve as inspiring leadership to the 14 NATO partners.

And as an added lever in working up a stiffer NATO defense, he has left vague the exact amount of total contribution the United States is willing to put into the combined effort.

U.S. officials also were sympathetic toward helping Britain in the NATO stepup because of the financial predicament which has forced the English into an austerity program.

Kennedy made plain in his talk to the nation Tuesday night that he wants the NATO nations to hasten fulfillment of the long-unmet NATO military strength goal.

In the center of Europe, this means increasing the present strength of about 23 NATO divisions to the target of 30 divisions. Most of this buildup is due from West Germany.

It was reported that the Kennedy administration does not preclude the possibility that atomic weapons might be used in

Most Firms In U.S. Doubt War Is Ahead

NEW YORK (AP)—The Berlin crisis is having little effect on management planning for the future of American industry, the Wall Street Journal said today.

It said a survey of 70 major U.S. companies showed most company leaders don't believe there will be a war and see no use in planning for an emergency.

Said the Journal: "American industry is meeting the Berlin crisis with unruffled calm — for some firms perhaps even a touch of complacency."

Despite the effect that "any drastic government reaction" to the crisis would have on American business, the Journal added, only a handful of the firms surveyed "are taking any specific steps at this time in preparation for such a national emergency."

The paper stated: "Only one company in the group is planning to stockpile materials or supplies which might become scarce if the crisis comes to a head. No more than a dozen have gotten around to compiling lists of workers and management men whose services might be lost through the recall of reservists."

"In fact, almost two thirds of the concerns surveyed say they aren't doing anything at all about the Berlin crisis. Most of them say they are unable to believe the situation will lead to war and therefore they see little use planning for it."

limited wars, but its new mobilization program veers somewhat away from previous doctrine.

That doctrine, as adopted by the Eisenhower administration, was predicated largely on the invoking of atomic firepower to offset the military manpower advantage of the Communist camp.

The program outlined by President Kennedy and explained in detail to a Senate Appropriations subcommittee Wednesday by Secretary of Defense Robert S. McNamara is threatened with repeated references to augmenting weapons firing standard, conventional explosive.

McNamara says this is for the purpose of providing greater versatility, to give the U.S. military more choice in the arms it would use to cope with less than nuclear war.

Fundamentally, the worry of U.S. military men over extensive use on the battlefield of atomic weapons is that this might develop into all-out nuclear exchange between nations, on a strategic attack basis.

American ground forces are far outnumbered by those of the Soviet Union. The United States now has only 17 ground combat divisions—14 effective Army divisions and 3 Marine divisions. Five of the U.S. Army divisions are stationed with NATO forces in Europe. The Communists now have up to 150 divisions in Europe.

The Kennedy-McNamara program so far calls only for added military manpower to fill out the present 17 divisions, but the way may be open to build up to 19 divisions later.

Many called to remind Selective Service officials that they had become fathers one or more times since their latest visit to the draft board.

Others wanted the board officials to know that their mother or father, or an aged aunt or uncle had in recent months become a dependent.

Col. Frank J. Graf, deputy director of the Pennsylvania Selective Service System, said, "generally over the state people came in correcting records."

"Many men suddenly realized they had better bring their records up to date," he said. "Many queries were from married men with children, wanting to know if they will be called."

Thousands of others, apparently resigned to their 1-A classification, sought out the armed forces recruiting centers. They wanted to know what was being offered to the enlistee.

Civil Defense headquarters across the country were deluged with calls from citizens wanting to know what precautions they could take to avert the devastation of an enemy air attack.

Even the newest state, Hawaii, reported queries on Selective Service status had tripled in 24 hours. Officials there described the volume of telephone calls and personal visits to the offices as "just tremendous."

Though the armed forces recruiting centers did a land-office business—in some cases judged equal to activities during the Korean War—many reported "plenty of questions but few enlistments."

Probably one of the most common reasons for the calls to draft boards was requests to correct

New Arms Talks Still in Doubt

MOSCOW (AP) — President Kennedy's disarmament chief, John J. McCloy, returned today from a conference with Premier Khrushchev about starting new international disarmament talks.

"We are still hopeful that we can work out something that will be constructive," said McCloy, who has been trying without success for more than a month to win Soviet agreement on the makeup, agenda and timing of new East-West arms talks.

McCloy went to Sochi Tuesday to talk with Khrushchev at his Black Sea vacation villa.

He said it would be "a little bit early to make any predictions" on whether the United States and the Soviet Union will be able to take part in new arms talks by Aug. 1. That is the date set in a U.N. resolution.

Young American Men Pause To Check on Draft Status

Hundreds of thousands of small cards today were taken from desk drawers and the hidden recesses of wallets where they had lain unnoticed for months—even years.

President Kennedy Wednesday asked for more personnel in the armed forces, and overnight the most closely scrutinized card in the nation became the "notice of classification" issued by the Selective Service System.

Telephone calls in some instances two score more than the normal number, began to flood the switchboards of draft boards in every state, county, city and hamlet.

The American male wanted to know just where he stood in the President's plans to beef up the armed forces.

Fund Cut Eyed By Muhlenberg

Township Balances To Shrink in 1962

Muhlenberg Twp. faces a cut of almost $10,000 in its cash balance by the end of 1962 if the budget filed with County Auditor Marvin Rhoades by Lawrence W. Reid, clerk of the board of trustees, is adopted in full.

The actual balance decrease would amount to $9,783.73, resulting from proposed spending increases coupled with anticipated drops of more than $9,000 in township revenue for the new fiscal year.

Receipts by the end of 1961 are estimated at $37,773.73. Next year township income is expected to shrink to $28,715.

Expenses in 1961 are listed as $32,104, while disbursements in 1962 should total $23,829. This year's balance has been computed at $14,669.73. The reserve at the close of next year is slated to be only $4,886.

THE BIGGEST alteration in Muhlenberg's finances is planned in the gasoline tax fund. Increased spending, mostly for road construction and maintenance, combined with smaller receipts will eliminate a $3,482 surplus carried into 1961. In its place a deficit of $2,000 is forecast.

Actual totals are used for 1960 figures. Final computations for this year are based on actual totals for the first six months and estimates for the last half year. Estimates are made for 1962.

In the general fund, receipts are listed as: $12,187.43, $11,750.96; $9,256; expenses: $7,876.47, $8,354; $8,329; balances: $4,314.96; $3,396.96; $927.

No expenses are listed for all three years in the road and bridge fund. A constant balance of $4,409 has been maintained.

The motor vehicle license fund shows receipts: $5,524.02; $5,481.77; $4,050; expenses: $692.25, $2,500, $2,500; balances: $4,831.77; $3,381.77, $1,550.

Gasoline fund receipts: $15,520.80, $15,732, $11,000; expenses: $7,796.80, $12,250, $13,000; balances, $7,732, $3,482, —$2,000.

Upper House Slated To Get Measures for Consideration Friday

WASHINGTON (AP)—President Kennedy's requests for broad powers to call up more combat forces and buy more military hardware won overwhelming approval today from the Senate Armed Services Committee.

After a three-hour closed door session with Pentagon leaders the committee approved two bills without change and sent them to the Senate for expected passage Friday.

Top defense officials told the committee earlier they plan only limited use now of some of the powers asked by Kennedy to call up 250,000 reservists or hold servicemen on duty for a year beyond terms for which they volunteered or were drafted.

"We plan to use this authority sparingly," Secretary of Defense Robert S. McNamara told the Senate Armed Services Committee at a closed door session.

Chairman Richard B. Russell, D-Ga., has said the committee may approve later today two of Kennedy's emergency requests for wide authority to deal with the Berlin crisis or any future Communist threats.

One would let the President call to immediate active duty any of the various groups of trained reservists during the next year, or hold necessary units and individuals now in the armed forces for an extra 12 months of service.

The other would stamp approval on a $958,570,000 priority list of military hardware, including aircraft, missiles and ships.

McNamara said defense officials "are well aware of the disruptive effects and the hardships which such recalls to active duty have on the individuals involved."

Although he and Gen. Lyman L. Lemnitzer, chairman of the Joint Chiefs of Staff, testified behind closed doors their screened statements were made available to newsmen.

"We also plan to use the authority to extend the terms of service of military personnel to the minimum extent necessary," McNamara continued.

"We hope to restrict its use to only those personnel whose skill and experience are essential during the build-up phase—and for a

The prime minister made his announcement during a 3½-hour speech before hundreds of thousands of Cubans who wildly cheered him and Soviet spaceman Yuri Gagarin.

The Soviet major, launching out into international politics for the first time since he orbited the earth, denounced the United States and pledged to Cuba "the armed help of the Soviet people."

Castro followed Gagarin to the platform as the crowd shouted "down the Caimanera"—the Cuban name for the U.S. naval base at Guantanamo Bay in eastern Cuba.

The prime minister first attacked the U.S. press for predicting he would mark the 26th of July anniversary by announcing plans for a single political organization. A few minutes later he told the crowd Cuba was headed toward one over-all Socialist party embracing all organizations in the island country—military, political, labor and others.

Castro did not say when such a party would be proclaimed but indicated its formation would be gradual.

Castro also said he would return the Eastern Air Lines plane hijacked by an armed passenger Monday if the United States promises to return any Cuban planes that might be seized and flown to the United States in the future.

(There was some doubt as to exactly what Castro meant since at one point in his speech, as heard in Key West, Fla., he also mentioned "planes that were stolen from Cuba," suggesting he also wanted the return of planes seized in the past.)

(As recorded in Key West, this was what Castro said: "The Cuban government is prepared to return the plane, if, in turn, the North American government binds itself to return any plane that from now on is hijacked and taken to its territory. That is to say, that to our disposition to return the plane must correspond their disposition to return our planes that are hijacked and taken from here. The Cuban state is not to blame if a Yankee plane is stolen and the Cuban government has no obligation to return those planes if the North American government does not return the planes that were stolen from Cuba.")

Hillsboro Student Wins Medical Scholarship

COLUMBUS, Ohio (AP) — The $2,000 Rural Medical Scholarship, set up 13 years ago to encourage an interest in the study of medicine among young men and women in Ohio's non-metropolitan areas, has been awarded to 21-year-old Thomas H. Mallory of Hillsboro.

The Ohio State Medical Association said Mallory, son of a school teacher who also operates a small farm, will use the annual scholarship at Ohio State University College of Medicine.

U.S. Diplomat Team Starts Work on Berlin Proposals

WASHINGTON (AP) — The diplomatic phase of President Kennedy's Berlin preparedness program picks up tempo today with the departure for Paris of a U.S. team headed by Assistant Secretary of State Foy D. Kohler.

In advance of Kohler's takeoff, Secretary of State Dean Rusk scheduled a mid-afternoon news conference at which reporters planned to ask about further steps in Kennedy's broad program of counter measures against the worldwide Communist threat.

Kohler and a half dozen aides will meet with diplomatic teams from Britain, West Germany and France to do advance work on the Western Big Four foreign ministers conference to be held in Paris August 5-8. Rusk leaves for the French capital next week.

At Paris, the Western foreign affairs chiefs will go over a broad range of the strategies aimed at keeping West Berlin out of Communist hands.

From Kennedy's standpoint, a major task was to get the North Atlantic Treaty allies to step up their defense efforts to the allies have responded favorably to Kennedy's ideas, but it remains to be seen what action they will take.

The President hoped that his increased U.S. defense levels by $3,454,000,000 and 217,000 men would serve as inspiring leadership to the 14 NATO partners.

And as an added lever in working up a stiffer NATO defense, he has left vague the exact amount of total contribution the United States is willing to put into the combined effort.

U.S. officials also were sympathetic toward helping Britain in the NATO stepup because of the financial predicament which has forced the English into an austerity program.

Kennedy made plain in his talk to the nation Tuesday night that he wants the NATO nations to hasten fulfillment of the long-unmet NATO military strength goal.

In the center of Europe, this means increasing the present strength of about 23 NATO divisions to the target of 30 divisions. Most of this buildup is due from West Germany.

It was reported that the Kennedy administration does not preclude the possibility that atomic weapons might be used in limited wars, but its new mobilization program veers somewhat away from previous doctrine.

That doctrine, as adopted by the Eisenhower administration, was predicated largely on the invoking of atomic firepower to offset the military manpower advantage of the Communist camp.

The program outlined by President Kennedy and explained in detail to a Senate Appropriations subcommittee Wednesday by Secretary of Defense Robert S. McNamara is threaded with repeated references to augmenting weapons firing standard, conventional explosive.

McNamara says this is for the purpose of providing greater versatility, to give the U.S. military more choice in the arms it would use to cope with less than nuclear war.

Fundamentally, the worry of U.S. military men over extensive use on the battlefield of atomic weapons is that this might develop into all-out nuclear exchange between nations, on a strategic attack basis.

American ground forces are far outnumbered by those of the Soviet Union. The United States now has only 17 ground combat divisions—14 effective Army divisions and 3 Marine divisions. Five of the U.S. Army divisions are stationed with NATO forces in Europe. The Communists now have up to 150 divisions in Europe.

The Kennedy-McNamara program so far calls only for added military manpower to fill out the present 17 divisions, but the way may be open to build up to 19 divisions later.

Young American Men Pause To Check on Draft Status

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

Hundreds of thousands of small cards today were taken from desk drawers and the hidden recesses of wallets where they had lain unnoticed for months—even years.

President Kennedy Wednesday asked for more personnel in the armed forces, and overnight the most closely scrutinized card in the nation became the "notice of classification" issued by the Selective Service System.

Telephone calls in some instances two score more than the normal number, began to flood the switchboards of draft boards in every state, county, city and hamlet.

The American male wanted to know just where he stood in the President's plans to beef up the armed forces.

Thousands of others, apparently resigned to their I-A classification, sought out the armed forces recruiting centers. They wanted to know what was being offered to the enlistee.

Civil Defense headquarters across the country were deluged with calls from citizens wanting to know what precautions they could take to avert the devastation of an enemy air attack.

Even the newest state, Hawaii, reported queries on Selective Service status had tripled in 24 hours. Officials there described the volume of telephone calls and personal visits to the offices as "just tremendous."

Though the armed forces recruiting centers did a land-office business—in some cases judged equal to activities during the Korean War—many reported "plenty of questions but few enlistments."

Probably one of the most common reasons for the calls to draft boards was requests to correct existing records of individuals.

Many called to remind Selective Service officials that they had become fathers one or more times since their latest visit to the draft board.

Others wanted the board officials to know that their mother or father, or an aged aunt or uncle had in recent months become a dependent.

Col. Frank J. Graf, deputy director of the Pennsylvania Selective Service System, said, "generally over the state people came in correcting records."

"Many men suddenly realized they had better bring their records up to date," he said. "Many queries were from married men with children, wanting to know if they will be called."

Fund Cut Eyed By Muhlenberg

Township Balances To Shrink in 1962

Muhlenberg Twp. faces a cut of almost $10,000 in its cash balance by the end of 1962 if the budget filed with County Auditor Marvin Rhoades by Lawrence W. Reid, clerk of the board of trustees, is adopted in full.

The actual balance decrease would amount to $9,783.73, resulting from proposed spending increases coupled with anticipated drops of more than $9,000 in township revenue for the new fiscal year.

Receipts by the end of 1961 are estimated at $37,773.73. Next year township income is expected to shrink to $28,715.

Expenses in 1961 are listed as $32,104, while disbursements in 1962 should total $23,829. This year's balance has been computed at $14,669.73. The reserve at the close of next year is slated to be only $4,886.

THE BIGGEST alteration in Muhlenberg's finances is planned in the gasoline tax fund. Increased spending, mostly for road construction and maintenance, combined with smaller receipts will eliminate a $3,482 surplus carried into 1961. In its place a deficit of $2,000 is forecast.

Actual totals are used for 1960 figures. Final computations for this year are based on actual totals for the first six months and estimates for the last half year. Estimates are made for 1962.

In the general fund, receipts are listed as: $12,187.43, $11,750.96; $9,256; expenses: $7,876.47, $8,354; $8,329; balances: $4,314.96; $3,396.96; $927.

No expenses are listed for all three years in the road and bridge fund. A constant balance of $4,409 has been maintained.

The motor vehicle license fund shows receipts: $5,524.02; $5,481.77; $4,050; expenses: $692.25, $2,500, $2,500; balances: $4,831.77; $3,381.77, $1,550.

Gasoline fund receipts: $15,520.80, $15,732, $11,000; expenses: $7,796.80, $12,250, $13,000; balances: $7,732, $3,482, —$2,000.

Study Panel Gives Quick Nod To New Powers

Upper House Slated To Get Measures for Consideration Friday

WASHINGTON (AP)—President Kennedy's requests for broad powers to call up more combat forces and buy more military hardware won overwhelming approval today from the Senate Armed Services Committee.

After a three-hour closed door session with Pentagon leaders the committee approved two bills without change and sent them to the Senate for expected passage Friday.

Top defense officials told the committee earlier they plan only limited use now of some of the powers asked by Kennedy to call up 250,000 reservists or hold servicemen on duty for a year beyond terms for which they volunteered or were drafted.

"We plan to use this authority sparingly," Secretary of Defense Robert S. McNamara told the Senate Armed Services Committee at a closed door session.

Chairman Richard B. Russell, D-Ga., has said the committee may approve later today two of Kennedy's emergency requests for wide authority to deal with the Berlin crisis or any future Communist threats.

One would let the President call to immediate active duty any of the various groups of trained reservists during the next year, or hold necessary units and individuals now in the armed forces for an extra 12 months of service.

The other would stamp approval on a $958,570,000 priority list of military hardware, including aircraft, missiles and ships.

McNamara said defense officials "are well aware of the disruptive effects and the hardships which such recalls to active duty have on the individuals involved."

Although he and Gen. Lyman L. Lemnitzer, chairman of the Joint Chiefs of Staff, testified behind closed doors their screened statements were made available to newsmen.

"We also plan to use the authority to extend the terms of service of military personnel to the minimum extent necessary," McNamara continued.

"We hope to restrict its use to only those personnel whose skill and experience are essential during the build-up phase—and for a (Continued on Page 2)

Corn Growers Get Warning From Ag Chief

Emergency Feed Grain Non-Cooperators May Miss Price Benefits

WASHINGTON (AP) — Corn growers had a warning today that Secretary of Agriculture Orville L. Freeman will try to keep farmers who have not joined this year's emergency feed grain program from benefiting from the program's price-rising effects.

This notice came in a news conference comment by Freeman on his actios last Friday to halt an upturn in sorghum grain prices. At that time, Freeman announced that government stocks of sorghum are being offered at market prices.

This offer was expected to weaken market prices for sorghums at the outset of the harvest season. When the feed grain program registration was under way last spring, Freeman said he did not intend to let non-cooperators benefit.

Under the program, growers of corn and sorghum grain cut acreages at least 20 per cent. In return, they get higher price supports than last year and government payments on the idled land. Non-participants get neither.

Because of the reduced acreage of sorghums and the normal year-end reduction in supplies, sorghum prices advanced in recent weeks to or above the price support level. This would give some participating growers with early harvest grain a better price than last year.

Hence, Freeman's decision to unload government supplies to stop this and to assure feed users of ample supplies.

WASHINGTON (AP) — There will be no opportunity next year for American farmers to grow any substantial increased quantities of sugar beets.

The reason: The Kennedy administration is unlikely to make any recommendations for new sugar control legislation until next year.

WASHINGTON (AP) — A government report on grain stocks as of July 1 showed today that the nation is in no danger of running short as a result of this year's drought and a cutback in production under a feed grain program. Wheat stocks at the beginning of the 1961 crop marketing year were reported at 1.41 billion bushels, up 7 per cent from the record set a year ago. Thus the reserve and surplus supplies are considerably larger than this year's indicated crop of 1.26 billion bushels.

Market demands for wheat between now and the 1962 harvest are expected to total about 1.25 billion bushels.

Knollwood Owners Happier Now

Knollwood Village property owners will have 20 rather than 10 years in which to pay the recently approved sewer assessments, County officials said today.

An error in the original assessment resolution, passed Monday by the Pickaway Board of Commissioners, called for "20 semi-annual" payments.

After anxious inquiries by several land holders in the subdivision, spokesmen announced that the document's correct wording should have been "20 annual" payments.

The new sewer system was designed by Elmer S. Barrett, Chillicothe engineer and a specialist in sanitation operations.

Revival of Survival

Protective Devices For Citizens Eyed

EDITOR'S NOTE—In addition to shelters, what protective devices are being planned by civil defense officials for the average citizen? Sterling F. Green examines the survivor considerations in this last of four articles.

By STERLING F. GREEN
WASHINGTON (AP)—Civil defense authorities, concerned about the slow acceptance to the home shelter idea and misconceptions about such factors as evacuation, are working on protective devices for the average citizen.

Too many Americans still conceive of shelter as a costly blast-proof structure with three-foot walls.

Such shelters still are recommended, but the Office of Civil and Defense Mobilization says that in a great many cases an ordinary basement would do if it were provided with a wind-baffle entrance to block contaminated dust.

Current civil defense thinking accepts the idea that millions would be in the wrong place if catastrophe came. These would be killed.

The big idea now is to save those who, having escaped the blasts, are still vulnerable to radioactive fallout. The aim is to provide the survivors with shelter from the parties that are sucked up in nuclear explosions, carried on high, strong winds, and deposited on cities and countryside perhaps hundreds of miles away.

There also are misconceptions about evacuation, officials acknowledge. Most city dwellers believe with good reason that an 11th hour mass exodus in private cars would end quickly in a hopeless jam.

Actually, evacuation is not conceived of as a final, panicky flight while missiles streak toward their targets. It is now viewed chiefly as an advance precaution, taken in particularly vulnerable areas if deteriorating international conditions make it seem advisable.

Until last week's White House order giving the Pentagon major responsibility for civil defense, there was behind-scenes conflict here over whether the military establishment should take over the warning, communications and research and development programs as well as the management of the shelter drive.

The Governors' Conference and the United States Conference of Mayors—evidently believing that civilians would come off second best if military establishment men were making the decisions—issued strong statements favoring continued civilian control under the OCDM.

But with these issues settled and policy control still in civilian hands, all the disputants apparently have agreed that an all-out drive is worth the effort, under any management. They are hoping it is not already too late.

Ohio Air Guard Trip Covers 3,200 Miles

TOLEDO, Ohio (AP)—A 3,200-mile training flight by Air National Guard jet fighters, simulating a trip to northern France, went smoothly and "proved Guard units can deploy overseas in two days," says Maj. M. R. Forkapa of the 12th Tactical Fighter Squadron.

Twenty F84F jets of the Toledo-based unit started the flight at Myrtle Beach Air Force Base, S. C. and ended at George AFB in California, where they spent a week in air-to-air gunnery practice. The 12th arrived home Tuesday night.

It was the first time the Air National Guard had attempted such a simulated flight.

From Myrtle Beach, the Ohio Air Guard's jets flew to Sawyer AFB in northern Michigan and then made refueling stops at Minot, N.D., and Mountain Home, Idaho. The trip ended July 19 at George AFB. The stops simulated landings at Greenland, Iceland, Scotland and northern France.

The 12th is one of three squadrons attached to the 122nd Tactical Fighter Wing with headquarters at Fort Wayne, Ind.

Corn Growers Get Warning From Ag Chief

Emergency Feed Grain Non-Cooperators May Miss Price Benefits

WASHINGTON (AP) — Corn growers had a warning today that Secretary of Agriculture Orville L. Freeman will try to keep farmers who have not joined this year's emergency feed grain program from benefiting from the program's price-rising effects.

This notice came in a news conference comment by Freeman on his action last Friday to halt an upturn in sorghum grain prices. At that time, Freeman announced that government stocks of sorghum are being offered at market prices.

This offer was expected to weaken market prices for sorghums at the outset of the harvest season. When the feed grain program registration was under way last spring, Freeman said he did not intend to let non-cooperators benefit.

Under the program, growers of corn and sorghum grain cut acreages at least 20 per cent. In return, they get higher price supports than last year and government payments on the idled land. Non-participants get neither.

Because of the reduced acreage of sorghums and the normal year-end reduction in supplies, sorghum prices advanced in recent weeks to or above the price support level. This would give some participating growers with early harvest grain a better price than last year.

Hence, Freeman's decision to unload government supplies to stop this and to assure feed users of ample supplies.

WASHINGTON (AP) — There will be no opportunity next year for American farmers to grow any substantial increased quantities of sugar beets.

The reason: The Kennedy administration is unlikely to make any recommendations for new sugar control legislation until next year.

WASHINGTON (AP) — A government report on grain stocks as of July 1 showed today that the nation is in no danger of running short as a result of this year's drought and a cutback in production under a feed grain program.

Wheat stocks at the beginning of the 1961 crop marketing year were reported at 1.41 billion bushels, up 7 per cent from the record set a year ago. Thus the reserve and surplus supplies are considerably larger than this year's indicated crop of 1.26 billion bushels.

Market demands for wheat between now and the 1962 harvest are expected to total about 1.25 billion bushels.

Knollwood Owners Happier Now

Knollwood Village property owners will have 20 rather than 10 years in which to pay the recently approved sewer assessments, County officials said today.

An error in the original assessment resolution, passed Monday by the Pickaway Board of Commissioners, called for "20 semi-annual" payments.

After anxious inquiries by several land holders in the subdivision, spokesmen announced that the document's correct wording should have been "20 annual" payments.

The new sewer system was designed by Elmer S. Barrett, Chillicothe engineer and a specialist in sanitation operations.

Revival of Survival

Protective Devices For Citizens Eyed

EDITOR'S NOTE—In addition to shelters, what protective devices are being planned by civil defense officials for the average citizen? Sterling F. Green examines the survivor considerations in this last of four articles.

By STERLING F. GREEN
WASHINGTON (AP)—Civil defense authorities, concerned about the slow acceptance to the home shelter idea and misconceptions about such factors as evacuation, are working on protective devices for the average citizen.

Too many Americans still conceive of shelter as a costly blast-proof structure with three-foot walls.

Such shelters still are recommended, but the Office of Civil and Defense Mobilization says that in a great many cases an ordinary basement would do if it were provided with a wind-baffle entrance to block contaminated dust.

Current civil defense thinking accepts the idea that millions would be in the wrong place if catastrophe came. These would be killed.

The big idea now is to save those who, having escaped the blasts, are still vulnerable to radioactive fallout. The aim is to provide the survivors with shelter from the parties that are sucked up in nuclear explosions, carried on high, strong winds, and deposited on cities and countryside perhaps hundreds of miles away.

There also are misconceptions about evacuation, officials acknowledge. Most city dwellers believe with good reason that an 11th hour mass exodus in private cars would end quickly in a hopeless jam.

Actually, evacuation is not conceived of as a final, panicky flight while missiles streak toward their targets. It is now viewed chiefly as an advance precaution, taken in particularly vulnerable areas if deteriorating international conditions make it seem advisable.

Until last week's White House order giving the Pentagon major responsibility for civil defense, there was behind-scenes conflict here over whether the military establishment should take over the warning, communications and research and development programs as well as the management of the shelter drive.

NATO Stands Together

Every indication is that the NATO alliance stands together in firm opposition to the Khrushchev demands that the West get out of Berlin. There has not been a deviating voice.

And yet more than mere firmness is needed. The free world is in an exposed position in West Berlin. It is surrounded by the East German satellite which Moscow controls absolutely.

If Khrushchev should weaken in his announced intention to attempt to evict the West this year, he could order East Germany to apply nagging tactics over the months that would make the West's position more and more uncomfortable.

The free world needs, as it has long needed, some counter-measures to put pressures on the Soviet Union similar to those it is trying to apply. The West, by sticking together, could certainly make things tougher for the communist empire.

Embargoing exports to the low standard red nations, including food, would be a powerful level. It might even induce the reds to cut down on weapons and produce for the needs of their people.

Whatever our strategy is to be, it cannot be a soft one now. Khrushchev has closed the avenues to negotiation. Only he can reopen them. He has blocked out the United Nations with his boast that Russia would ignore a UN act Moscow didn't like.

Such an attitude cancels any possibility of appeasement. There are only two possible courses — to stand up to the reds at long last, or to surrender to them.

Everyone Suspects Normal Man

By Hal Boyle

NEW YORK (AP)—Once upon a time there was a man who set out to be popular and well-liked. His name was Mortimer Witherspoon Thrope.

He went to the public library and read a book on how to become popular and successful. "The way to be popular is to be normal," the book said. "Just act as a normal, balanced civilized individual should act and you're bound to be well-liked."

So Thrope faithfully followed the book's advice. He decided to become the most normal individual in his community.

Mortimer married a girl who was neither homely nor pretty—just average.

They had three children, all of whom got medium grades in school.

Mortimer bought a standard-sized house with a standard-sized mortgage in a standard neighborhood.

He drove a medium-sized car—

neither too dull nor too flashy—and traded it in on a new one every three years.

He joined the Elks, the PTA, and the American Legion. He was good to serve on committees but always declined to run for office in any of these organizations. "Oh, there must be someone else better qualified," he said, modestly.

He subscribed to a book club, but carefully avoided reading any of the selections—unless they hit the best seller list.

Mortimer always—or almost always—got up to give his seat to an old lady on the bus, particularly if anyone from his neighborhood was on the bus, too.

He always arrived on the job punctually at 9 a.m., and left promptly at 5:30. "I get paid for doing a full day's work—and I like to give it to them," he said.

When the boss told a joke in a conference, Mortimer was the second employee to start chuckling and the next to the last to quit.

At cocktail parties Mortimer got high but never loaded, and never bragged about himself. "Tell me about yourself—you must have had an interesting life," he urged those he met.

After 15 years of exemplary living, Mortimer suddenly awoke to the fact that instead of being widely popular, he was being avoided, even by old acquaintances. They seemed uneasy in his presence.

So Mortimer hired a public relations man to find out why. This individual made a secret survey of Mortimer's neighborhood and office and came back with his report.

"They think you're too good to be true, Mr. Thrope. They don't trust you. They think you must be hiding something."

Moral: If you want to be popular, be different. Everyone suspects anyone who acts too normal.

A Way To Pass Time

By George Sokolsky

Always there must be conversation. It is a way to pass the time. It saves eyesight because when one talks, he need not read.

Why worry about knowledge — it is possible to read book reviews. Then one can talk for hours about the book. So along comes a sloth who asks:

"Did you read it?" That spoils everything. Of course nobody read the book yet. They're all waiting for a paper-back to show up. Besides, even if you have the paper - back, it is not necessary to read the stuff. It is enough if one holds it in his hand. By osmosis, the stuff somehow gets into his system. Then he can talk. The point is to be able to talk — to communicate, in the phrase. Surely, one must be able to communicate. In fact, there are courses in some colleges designed to help the student communicate. About what? Does it matter, as long as one talks and seems wise?

So there is a discussion and believe it or not, this is authentic. The question is thrown into the hopper: How did the United Nations come into existence?

This is too specific a question. It is like asking for a definition. As a matter of fact, did it come into existence at all? In what context? The conversation moves along. "Oh!" says a blithe spirit, "Eleanor Roosevelt started it as one of her projects."

So there is talk about that and also about Eleanor Roosevelt and she is sincere? Then the boor in the crowd thunders in his two cents: "All this bosh is nonsense. The United Nations came into existence as a result of the San Francisco Conference in 1945."

That spoiled everything. Who asked him to cut the conversation short by being so specific? It might have been fun to speculate. Was it Yalta or Potsdam or London or maybe Casablanca? What do you mean when you say that Roosevelt was dead at the time? So, who was President?

At that point, the yapping takes a halt because it is necessary to drink coffee. It is impossible to sit in a place all night and not drink coffee.

So, the problem is how to pass the time in intellectual pursuits without doing any work? Of course, it is possible to spend an evening dealing with John Kennedy who ain't what we thought he would be.

Well, what did you think he'd be? He isn't radical like a young man should be, but then he isn't as young as he looks. Neither is Marilyn Monroe. Will she be Jewish now that she dumped Miller or will she go into the Church if she remarries Joe DiMaggio?

"No! They're just friends. When she's in trouble, the guy is a good sport and comes around to look after her. You can't expect a great star like that to look after herself, even if she knows how, which most don't because it ain't professional."

So, the boor asks, "What did you expect Jack Kennedy to be that he isn't?"

Did he have to bring that up again? Who asked him? Besides, I believe in Sorel and Francisco Ferrer and even Bakunin and Kropotkin, so what do I have to do with Presidents?

The startling fact to me is that all this yapping is done by boys and girls who are going to college or who are just out of college. What did they learn? What intellectual or spiritual benefit did they get in a college?

So the boor begins to ask questions about college courses and college work. It's soils the evening. First of all, that girl over there who yapped so much and said that she went to Columbia University made a slight mistake; she went to the School for General Studies where she took two courses just to be able to say that she once went to college. Another student dancing at the New School, which could be of no value in discovering how the United Nations came into existence.

The point of the matter is that there are some who go to college to learn and there are those who just go. And it is getting to be too expensive to keep schools going for those who just go. Instead of loading the nation down with a huge bill for so-called education, let us either educate or close down the joints.

Revival of Civil Defense To Be Asked of Legislature

COLUMBUS, Ohio (AP) — The General Assembly when it returns next Monday will be asked to take a new look at Civil Defense appropriations in light of President Kennedy's new emphasis on the subject.

Unless the legislature acts, Civil Defense is practically dead in Ohio.

In his address to the nation Tuesday night, the President said he is asking an additional $207 million for Civil Defense and transferring the entire operation into the Defense Department.

Gov. Michael V. DiSalle told newsmen today Ohio might lose as much as $500,000 a year in federal matching funds if Civil Defense in Ohio is allowed to die. The governor said he plans to confer with Adj. Gen. Loren G. Windom before deciding the exact approach to take.

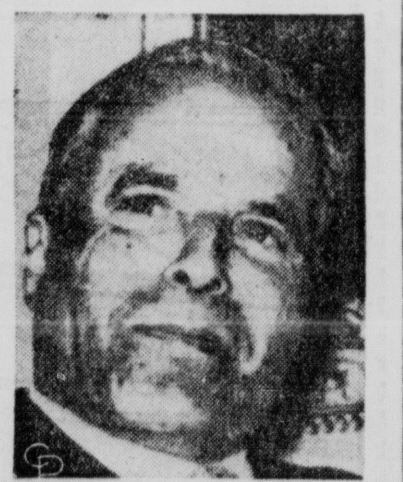

Thane M. Durey, deputy director of the Ohio Civil Defense Corps, said the President's emphasis on the program was not entirely unexpected. But he said his office has "no direct plans" and is waiting to hear more from Washington.

DiSalle quoted a month-old telegram from Director Frank B. Ellis of the Office of Civil Defense Mobilization to the effect that Ohio's action to kill off the Civil Defense organization was shortsighted in view of the national policy that the program is a joint federal-state responsibility.

The Ohio Senate Finance Committee originally cut off all appropriations for Civil Defense. Later, however, $100,000 was restored for the present fiscal year to pay the cost of closing out the operation.

DiSalle told newsmen the legislature could pass a separate bill to breathe new financial life into Ohio's Civil Defense program.

Try and Stop Me

By BENNETT CERF

A YOUNG MINISTER was vacationing in the White Mountains when he learned that a lady guest of the hotel, recently arrived from Boston, was gravely ill. Anxious to cheer her up he paid a courtesy call, murmured a wish for her speedy convalescence, and concluded, "I should like to say a brief prayer for your recovery before I leave."

The sick lady rallied at once, and snapped, "That will be quite unnecessary, young man. I am being prayed for in Boston."

Simon and Schuster published a history of burlesque, but genuflected to the delicate sensibilities of the critics when they distributed review copies. They furnished extra paper jackets that enabled the critics to disguise the books when they were reading same in public.

The extra jackets featured one of these two titles: "How to Cheat the Government on Your Income Tax" and "Lincoln—the Man and the Car."

Inside You and Yours

By BURTON H. FERN, M.D.

Imagine! The world's biggest splinter! Eleven feet of wire in one arm!

The splinter had come from a wire - making machine which kept running with a workman's arm caught in the works.

Splinters — technically called "foreign bodies" — range from a tiny cinder in the eye to the crowbar which first - aiders once removed from the skull of a Massachusetts man. He recovered within a week.

To prevent infection, foreign bodies have to be removed at once. You can usually handle the little ones, but only a doctor or surgeon can remove large foreign bodies.

He operates after locating the foreign object with educated fingertips or silent X-rays. Even these tiny operations have to follow big - time operating room rules to avoid infection.

Occasionally, special magnets can draw out metal foreign bodies without any fancy knife work. Often foreign bodies are left alone and nature takes care of them.

Special cells quickly envelop the foreign object, sealing it off from normal flesh. These cells destroy the foreign body and push it out. Because ordinary cells aren't up to this job, many join together to become giants.

This giant - cell envelope carries the foreign invader to the skin surface. But, like a lost letter, the envelope may not arrive for years. World War II veterans are still finding shell fragments pushed to the surface by old reliable giant cells.

You can take out most run-of-the-mill splinters yourself - half-safely with a sewing needle sterilized in a match flame, or completely safely with a needle sterilized in boiling water or an antiseptic solution.

Check with your doctor if the splinter looks deep or dirty. He may suggest a tetanus shot just in case.

And of course let him take out any foreign body you can't remove. Even midsize splinters should have to wait for giant cells!

Dr. Fern's mailbox is wide open for letters from readers. While he cannot undertake to answer individual letters, he will use readers' questions in his column whenever possible and when they are of general interest. Address your letters to Dr. Fern in care of this newspaper.

The Business World

By Sam Dawson

NEW YORK (AP) — In a one-two punch Washington and London this week jabbed at U.S. business and financial plans and prospects. In time, American consumers and taxpayers may feel it.

President Kennedy is dealing with the Berlin crisis by strengthening U.S. defenses. Prime Minister MacMillan is bolstering the English pound. Together their proposals add some new items to the American business scorecards—and in some things Washington and London are pulling in opposite directions.

Here are the new things American businessmen, consumers, stock traders and investors must take into account:

Congress is asked to raise U.S. military and civil defense by about $3.5 billion. This will send the official estimate of the Treasury deficit up above $5 billion, and the unofficial predictions even higher.

At the same time, England is cutting its share of Western defense spending. And France has much of its military attention centered on the Algerian and Tunisian trouble spots and the threatened Sahara oil fields.

For business, the Washington moves mean more defense orders. This will change stock market opinion of some industries. And deficit spending will fire another rocket in the series already timed to boost the economy in general to a higher level starting in the fall.

If business is souped up as expected, Treasury revenues may be enough to make a tax hike unnecessary, the President hopes.

He also hopes deficit spending and booming business won't mean more inflation. Washington has just reported that the cost of living has hit a new high, with a very modest rise in prices.

But while Washington is trying to spur consumer spending and business expansion, London is trying to put a brake on its inflationary boom. And the steps it is taking are giving American businessmen pause.

NATO Stands Together

Every indication is that the NATO alliance stands together in firm opposition to the Khrushchev demands that the West get out of Berlin. There has not been a deviating voice.

And yet more than mere firmness is needed. The free world is in an exposed position in West Berlin. It is surrounded by the East German satellite which Moscow controls absolutely.

If Khrushchev should weaken in his announced intention to attempt to evict the West this year, he could order East Germany to apply nagging tactics over the months that would make the West's position more and more uncomfortable.

The free world needs, as it has long needed, some counter-measures to put pressures on the Soviet Union similar to those

Everyone Suspects Normal Man

NEW YORK (AP)—Once upon a time there was a man who set out to be popular and well-liked. His name was Mortimer Witherspoon Thrope.

He went to the public library and read a book on how to become popular and successful.

"The way to be popular is to be normal," the book said. "Just act as a normal, balanced, civilized individual should act and you're bound to be well-liked."

So Thrope faithfully followed the book's advice. He decided to become the most normal individual in his community.

Mortimer married a girl who was neither homely nor pretty—just average.

They had three children, all of whom got medium grades in school.

Mortimer bought a standard-sized house with a standard-sized mortgage in a standard neighborhood.

He drove a medium-sized car—

neither too dull nor too flashy—and traded it in on a new one every three years.

He joined the Elks, the PTA, and the American Legion. He was good to serve on committees but always declined to run for office in any of these organizations.

"Oh, there must be someone else better qualified," he said, modestly.

He subscribed to a book club, but carefully avoided reading any of the selections—unless they hit the best seller list.

Mortimer always—or almost always—got up to give his seat to an old lady on the bus, particularly if anyone from his neighborhood was on the bus, too.

He always arrived on the job punctually at 9 a.m., and left promptly at 5:30. "I get paid for doing a full day's work—and I like to give it to them," he said.

When the boss told a joke in a conference, Mortimer was the second employee to start chuckling and the next to the last to quit.

At cocktail parties Mortimer got high but never loaded, and never bragged about himself.

"Tell me about yourself—you must have had an interesting life," he urged those he met.

After 13 years of exemplary living, Mortimer suddenly awoke to the fact that instead of being widely popular, he was being avoided, even by old acquaintances. They seemed uneasy in his presence.

So Mortimer hired a public relations man to find out why. This individual made a secret survey of Mortimer's neighborhood and office and came back with his report.

"They think you're too good to be true, Mr. Thrope. They don't trust you. They think you must be hiding something."

Moral: If you want to be popular, be different. Everyone suspects anyone who acts too normal.

A Way To Pass Time

Always there must be conversation. It is a way to pass the time. It saves eyesight because when one talks, he need not read.

Why worry about knowledge — it is possible to read book reviews. Then one can talk for hours about the book. So along comes a slob who asks:

"Did you read it?"

"That spoils everything. Of course nobody read the book yet. They're all waiting for a paperback to show up. Besides, even if you have the paper - back, it is not necessary to read the stuff. It is enough if one holds it in his hand. By osmosis, the stuff somehow gets into his system. Then he can talk. The point is to be able to talk — to communicate, is the phrase. Surely, one must be able to communicate. In fact, there are courses in some colleges designed to help the student communicate. About what? Does it matter, as long as one talks and seems wise?"

So there is a discussion and believe it or not, this is authentic. The question is thrown into the hopper: How did the United Nations come into existence?

This is too specific a question. It is like asking for a definition. As a matter of fact, did it come into existence at all? In what context? The conversation moves along.

"Oh!" says a blithe spirit, "Eleanor Roosevelt started it as one of her projects."

So there is talk about that and also about Eleanor Roosevelt and is she sincere? Then the boor in the crowd throws in his two cents:

"All this bushwa is nonsense. The United Nations came into existence as a result of the San Francisco Conference in 1945."

That spoiled everything. Who asked him to cut the conversation short by being so specific? It might have been fun to speculate. Was it Yalta or Potsdam or London or maybe Casablanca?

What do you mean when you say that Roosevelt was dead at the time? So, who was President?

At that point, the yapping takes a halt because it is necessary to drink coffee. It is impossible to sit in a place all night and not drink coffee.

So, the problem is how to pass the time in intellectual pursuits without doing any work? Of course, it is possible to spend an evening dealing with John Kennedy who ain't what we thought he would be.

Well, what do you think he'd be? He isn't radical like a young man should be, but then he isn't as young as he looks. Neither is Marilyn Monroe. Will she be Jewish now that she dumped Miller or will she go into the Church if she re-

marries Joe DiMaggio

"No! They're just friends. When she's in trouble, the guy is a good sport and comes around to look after her. You can't expect a great star like that to look after herself, even if she knows how, which most don't because it ain't professional."

So, the boor asks, "What did you expect Jack Kennedy to do that he isn't?"

Did he have to bring that up again? Who asked him? Besides, I believe in Sorel and Francisco Ferrer and even Bakunin and Kropotkin, so what do I have to do with Presidents?

The startling fact to me is that all this yapping is done by boys and girls who are going to college or who are just out of college. What did they learn? What intellectual or spiritual benefit did they get in a college?

So the boor begins to ask questions about college courses and college work. It spoils the evening. First of all, that girl over there who yapped so much and said that she went to Columbia University made a slight mistake; she went to the School for General Studies where she took two courses just to be able to say that she once went to college. Another studied dancing at the New School, which could be of no value in discovering how the United Nations came into existence.

The point of the matter is that there are some who go to college to learn and there are those who just go. And it is getting to be too expensive to keep schools going for those who just go. Instead of loading the nation down with a huge bill for so-called education, let us either educate or close down the joints.

Revival of Civil Defense To Be Asked of Legislature

COLUMBUS, Ohio (AP) — The General Assembly when it returns next Monday will be asked to take a new look at Civil Defense appropriations in light of President Kennedy's new emphasis on the subject.

Unless the legislature acts, Civil Defense is practically dead in Ohio.

In his address to the nation Tuesday night, the President said he is asking an additional $207 million for Civil Defense and transferring the entire operation into the Defense Department.

Gov. Michael V. DiSalle told newsmen today Ohio might lose as much as $500,000 a year in federal matching funds if Civil Defense in Ohio is allowed to die.

The governor said he plans to confer with Adj. Gen. Loren G. Windom before deciding the exact approach to take.

Thane M. Durey, deputy director of the Ohio Civil Defense Corps, said the President's emphasis on the program was not entirely unexpected. But he said his office has "no direct plans" and is waiting to hear more from Washington.

DiSalle quoted a month-old telegram from Director Frank B. Ellis of the Office of Civil Defense Mobilization to the effect that Ohio's action to kill off the Civil Defense organization was shortsighted in view of the national policy that the program is a joint federal-state responsibility.

The Ohio Senate Finance Committee originally cut off all appropriations for Civil Defense. Later, however, $100,000 was restored for the present fiscal year to pay the cost of closing out the operation.

DiSalle told newsmen the legislature could pass a separate bill to breathe new financial life into Ohio's Civil Defense program.

DiSalle said the man who is giving the French the "go" sign over the big Bizerte naval base is President Habib Bourguiba (above).

A YOUNG MINISTER was vacationing in the White Mountains when he learned that a lady guest of the hotel, recently arrived from Boston, was gravely ill. Anxious to cheer her up he paid a courtesy call, murmured a wish for her speedy convalescence, and concluded, "I should like to say a brief prayer for your recovery before I leave."

The sick lady rallied at once, and snapped, "That will be quite unnecessary, young man. I am being prayed for in Boston."

Imagine! The world's biggest splinter! Eleven feet of wire in one arm!

The splinter had come from a wire - making machine which kept running with a workman's arm caught in the works.

Splinters — technically called "foreign bodies" — range from a tiny cinder in the eye to the crowbar which first - aiders once removed from the skull of a Massachusetts man. He recovered within a week.

To prevent infection, foreign bodies have to be removed at once. You can usually handle the little ones, but only a doctor or surgeon can remove large foreign bodies.

He operates after locating the foreign object with educated fingertips or silent X-rays. Even these tiny operations have to follow big - time operating room rules to avoid infection.

Occasionally, special magnets can draw out metal foreign bodies without any fancy knife work. Often foreign bodies are left alone and nature takes care of them.

Special cells quickly envelop the foreign object, sealing it off from normal flesh. These cells destroy the foreign body and push it out. Because ordinary cells aren't up to this job, many join together to become giants.

This giant - cell envelope carries the foreign invader to the skin surface. But, like a lost letter, the envelope may not arrive for years. World War II veterans are still finding shell fragments pushed to the surface by old reliable giant cells.

You can take out most run-of-the-mill splinters yourself — half-safe with a sewing needle sterilized in a match flame, or completely safe with a needle sterilized in boiling water or an antiseptic solution.

Check with your doctor if the splinter looks deep or dirty. He may suggest a tetanus shot just in case.

And of course let him take out any foreign body you can't remove. Even midge splinters should's have to wait for giant cells!

Dr. Fern's mailbox is wide open for letters from readers. While he cannot undertake to answer individual letters, he will use readers' questions in his column whenever possible and when they are of general interest. Address your letters to Dr. Fern in care of this newspaper.

SHOW GARDEN — Robert L. Kuhn has a garden in which he spends a lot of time and he has it right out in front where it can be seen. He specializes in roses but he has petunias, geraniums and chrysanthemums that make a wonderful display all summer and fall. (Staff Photo)

Kuhn Spends Full Time On Flowers

Eye Catching Display Draws Visitors From Many States

Robert L. Kuhn has flowers that are a blaze of bloom in summer.

He lives at 223 N. Washington St. A somewhat unorthodox gardener when it comes to a landscape plan, Kuhn knows how to achieve an effect that has people from Pennsylvania, Michigan and Virginia stopping to look and chat with him about his flowers.

He lives on a small corner lot. Instead of a grass area between the street and his porch, he has flowers like petunias, geraniums and roses blooming profusely.

Kuhn is a real rose fancier. On this small lot he has 67 rose bushes. These he cares for with great diligence. Many of them were purchased at the dime store. A few came from Walnut Street greenhouse. He loves them all.

HE HAS the roses planted all over the yard. At intervals of perhaps three feet he digs out the grass and plants a rose.

Kuhn has long since stopped labeling his roses. His theory is that if passers-by see the roses are labeled they think the roses are super - fine and attempt to get a cutting. He has actually had whole rose plants stolen from his yard. He feels that unlabeled roses are less of a temptation.

Kuhn was permanently and totally disabled in an accident at work many years ago. So he has lots of time to spend on his flowers.

Flanking the short walk from the porch to the street are bricks on edge carefully painted white and red and within the confines of the brick borders are bright red geraniums.

Porch chairs are painted bright red and a wall bracket holds a bright red pot of green ivy.

To further embellish the property Kuhn has a bird bath on the edge of which is a little statue of a boy fishing. In the petunias there is also a painted dog which bears the house number.

WE WERE greatly concerned about the chore of mowing the grass in between the roses.

But Kuhn has a power mower which he starts with electricity and he assures us he doesn't mind cutting the grass between the roses.

Here is a man who loves flowers and has his own ideas about showing them off.

New Lavenders Include Pigmy

Most interesting of the new introductions in the just-off-the-press catalog of Jackson and Perkins, Rose Growers Newark, N. Y., are two new lavender roses.

They are Royal Lavender, an ever-blooming climber and Pigmy lavender a new addition to the pigmy class.

Harold Weaver, Basil, had been testing a lavender climbing rose in his garden. Perhaps it was this new introduction.

Garden Gossip

The Emmitt Tooles, Saltcreek Twp., telephoned that their Americana was blooming. They have several new roses. These are under Mr. Toole's province. He reported to his wife that Americana was a really beautiful rose.

The Tooles also have snapdragons and dahlias blooming full tilt.

Mrs. Ella Hornbeck and Mrs. George Steely have been swapping flowers for years. Mrs. Hornbeck fell in love with the blue daisy in Mrs. Steely's garden last year. So she was given a start. It did not live over the winter she reported.

Loring Hill had made seven or eight of the arrangements for the tables at the Meade Fish fry. The prettiest one was lavender roses and nandina blossoms in a shell like container with one of lavender.

TALK about Custer's Last Stand, I made my last stand against the weeds in my garden. I literally pulled tons of weeds. There were lots of vacant spaces after the weed pulling which I have filled in with annuals. It's mighty late for transplanting but these rains will help.

H. A. Strous brought his little granddaughter up for a swim in the pond. He looked at all the clover and all the bees and wondered how barefoot swimmers avoided the bees. They didn't. We had three bee sting casualties last week. One was Donna Strous.

Myrtle Noggle says her apricots are ripe now. Apricots from the tree are very rare in this locality. Man! That's real eating.

Mrs. Bud Parker says their pumpkin vines are really going to town. She did not know how vines could grow so fast. The pumpkins are from Halloween Pumpkin innards which the Parkers saved.

Mrs. George Steely had an elegant little potted palm. We asked her if she ever watered it with salt water. She said "Land no!" She advised me to tell Mayor Gordon not to do so.

The Frankfort Garden Club held a workshop at Mrs. Reginald Blue's home to practice for the Ross County Fair Flower Show. Mrs. James Jackson Ewington was the instructor.

MRS. BLUE has received her midget waterlilies. These are for very small pools. She is planting hers in a big kettle on her patio.

Corilla Pontius has red water lilies blooming in her pool.

My glads wintered over in the ground again this year. They are in excellent condition. If anybody has any glads that are not particularly pretty, do try winter them over. I would not suggest that you do this with expensive corms but this is the third summer for mine.

We have been told that we never saw petunias until we look at the Albert Lovett's planting. The Lovetts live at 379 Northridge Road.

Somebody told us that the Southward garden was mighty interesting, especially the vegetables.

Somewhere on the County line road, we understand, there's a place with a beautiful gray hedge. We cannot imagine what it could be. I'll be cruising along the County line Road some of these days to see it.

MISS VERA GRUBB said her persimmon tree had no persimmons this year. She says these trees have little bell shaped white blossoms. I have never seen a persimmon blossom.

Miss Grubb has two Paulownia tree seedlings growing like mad in her yard. The mother tree is across the street in Evelyn Hayef's yard. It is the catalpa - like tree with the lavender blossoms.

Buck Petty says that with as much rain as we have it looks as though the ditches would be overflowing. He says the earth is drinking the rain up now. In former years it was running off the surface. He thinks this is a good sign and maybe the water level will raise.

The old High Street Cemetery has a great many yucca plants in bloom now. They are attractive in bloom and their sword like foliage is especially pleasing.

Harold Kromer, Columbus, is a pretty sophisticated fisherman. He has fished the waters of Canada many different summers. He was fishing in our pond the other evening, using his evening lure. And he caught a fifteen-inch big mouth bass.

Sophisticated or not, he was mighty excited and kept yelling, "I gotta fish! I gotta fish!" It's the biggest one caught in our pond that we know of.

When Dr. Jean Stevenson, Cincinnati, saw the Kordes Perfecta rose in bloom at the Elmon Richards he told them he thought it was the most perfect color he had ever seen in this particular rose.

All the Stevensons are rose fanciers. I think maybe they caught the virus from their sister, Mrs. Tom Haber, Columbus. The Habers now specialize in hollies, rhododendrons and wild flowers.

AND SPEAKING of Elmon Richards. He is said to put out marvelous barbecued steaks for his guests. I saw the barbecue. It's a most interesting one sent by a friend in Oklahoma. The barbecue is under cover with a metal hood to catch the smoke.

Heavy Population Brings No Worry To Violet Fancier

"What's my favorite gardener been doing?" I asked recently when I stopped by to see Mrs. George Steely, 452 E. Main St.

And my favorite gardener had been doing plenty. One of her little chores is taking care of 221 African Violets, many of which she propagated from leaves.

Mrs. Steely, who has lived at her present residence more than 30 years, is a true veteran of the garden indoor and outdoor.

You might think that 221 violets would leave little room for Mrs. Steely herself. The violets have not taken over. They are merely a part of the decor. They are not edging Mrs. Steely out, not at all.

SHE has a big sunroom with glass shelves where many of the violets are blooming. In the kitchen and bedroom, too, are glass window shelves for her favorite plant.

It's quite an achievement to house this many violets attractively. But Mrs. Steely is not afraid of over population. She gives lots of plants away.

She does not keep her plants name - labeled. "What's the difference what they're called as long as they are pretty," she says. And believe me they are that.

Mrs. Steely says the plants are not troublesome, but a pleasure from beginning to end. She has amassed her wide collection over a period of many years. So it's just a matter of a new shelf here and a new shelf there until there's space for all.

Mrs. Steely is an outdoor gardener, too, and has been for many a year. There's no season that you'll find her garden without flowers.

Iris and rose time is when her garden is at its best but there was many a flower of interest in mid-July.

THERE was monardo, purple cone flower, feverfew, a so-called hardy dahlia (a very double dahlia-like flower), Shasta daisies, side-alcea, gaillardias, wallflower and a charming blue daisy a member, perhaps of the aster family.

And Mrs. Steely is one of the fortunate people belonging to the Order of the Dwarf Blue Clematis. This means, in short, that she has that beautiful and unbuyable blue clematis that is seen only in Circleville gardens and then not too often.

There was a time when Mrs. Steely's myrtle - covered mounded rock garden sloped down to a pool of waterlilies. But the pool has been abandoned. Mrs. Steely did away with it shortly after her husband's death. "A pool," she says, "is considerable work."

There are necessary changes that gardeners must make as time passes. This year Mrs. Steely decided to give up her largest iris planting. The weeding got to be too much of a chore so now when friends come they are given some choice variety of iris. Next fall the space will be made into a grass area.

Things have grown amazingly this summer, Mrs. Steely observed. Her phlox has never been so tall. Yes, my favorite gardener is just as busy as ever in her garden. And she stoutly maintains one 221 African violets are nothing but a pleasure.

Use Phaltan For Blackspot

Blackspot is to be found in many rose gardens in Circleville this season.

In fact it looks as though everybody who has roses is troubled. The wet season has something to do with the spread of this fungus.

But veteran rosarian, M. E. Noggle, W. Union St., saw no reason for getting into a panic about it. Incidentally, his roses are bothered very little with it now, wet season or not.

Be sure that your rose dust or rose spray contains Phaltan. Noggle has been using a phaltan preparation for four years and he has learned along with other scientific rose growers that it is the best substance for combating blackspot yet to be found.

According to Noggle, "Haze", the all purpose rose spray, contains Phaltan. The all - purpose rose spray available at hardware stores here, also has this substance incorporated in it.

IF you buy phaltan, Noggle says, then add an insecticide so you can spray insects and treat fungus at the same time. Most already-mixed all-purpose rose sprays combine the two operations.

"Blackspot cannot be cured, only prevented," Noggle explained. "If your leaves already are infected they are gone. On the other hand if the new growth is treated before blackspot hits, the new growth will be safe."

We asked Noggle about picking up all infected foliage that dropped off and he regarded this as an unnecessary task. "The spores are air-borne and your rose foliage will be endangered whether the foliage is picked up and burned or not," he said.

So take the advice of a man who doesn't have blackspot this season. Be sure phaltan is one of the ingredients of the spray you use.

SHOW GARDEN — Robert L. Kuhn has a garden in which he spends a lot of time and he has it right out in front where it can be seen. He specializes in roses but he has petunias, geraniums and chrysanthemums that make a wonderful display all summer and fall. (Staff Photo)

Kuhn Spends Full Time On Flowers

Eye Catching Display Draws Visitors From Many States

Robert L. Kuhn has flowers that are a blaze of bloom in summer.

He lives at 223 N. Washington St. A somewhat unorthodox gardener when it comes to a landscape plan, Kuhn knows how to achieve an effect that has people from Pennsylvania, Michigan and Virginia stopping to look and chat with him about his flowers.

He lives on a small corner lot. Instead of a grass area between the street and his porch, he has flowers like petunias, geraniums and roses blooming profusely.

Kuhn is a real rose fancier. On this small lot he has 67 rose bushes. These he cares for with great diligence. Many of them were purchased at the dime store. A few came from Walnut Street greenhouse. He loves them all.

HE HAS the roses planted all over the yard. At intervals of perhaps three feet he digs out the grass and plants a rose.

Kuhn has long since stopped labeling his roses. His theory is that if passers-by see the roses are labeled they think the roses are super - fine and attempt to get a cutting. He has actually had whole rose plants stolen from his yard. He feels that unlabeled roses are less of a temptation.

Kuhn was permanently and totally disabled in an accident at work many years ago. So he has lots of time to spend on his flowers.

Flanking the short walk from the porch to the street are bricks on edge carefully painted white and red and within the confines of the brick borders are bright red geraniums.

Porch chairs are painted bright red and a wall bracket holds a bright red pot of green ivy.

To further embellish the property Kuhn has a bird bath on the edge of which is a little statue of a boy fishing. In the petunias there is also a painted dog which bears the house number.

WE WERE greatly concerned about the chore of mowing the grass in between the roses.

But Kuhn has a power mower which he starts with electricity and he assures us he doesn't mind cutting the grass between the roses.

Here is a man who loves flowers and has his own ideas about showing them off.

New Lavenders Include Pigmy

Most interesting of the new introductions in the just-off-the-press catalog of Jackson and Perkins, Rose Growers Newark, N. Y., are two new lavender roses.

They are Royal Lavender, an ever-blooming climber and Pigmy lavender a new addition to the pigmy class.

Harold Weaver, Basil, had been testing a lavender climbing rose in his garden. Perhaps it was this new introduction.

this is the third summer for mine.

We have been told that we never saw petunias until we look at the Albert Lovett's planting. The Lovetts live at 379 Northridge Road.

Sombody told us that the Southward garden was mighty interesting, especially the vegetables.

Somewhere on the County line road, we understand, there's a place with a beautiful gray hedge. We cannot imagine what it could be. I'll be cruising along the County line Road some of these days to see it.

MISS VERA GRUBB said her persimmon tree had no persimmons this year. She says these trees have little bell shaped white blossoms. I have never seen a persimmon blossom.

Miss Grubb has two Paulownia tree seedlings growing like mad in her yard. The mother tree is across the street in Evelyn Hafey's yard. It is the catalpa - like tree with the lavender blossoms.

Buck Petty says that with as much rain as we have it looks as though the ditches would be overflowing. He says the earth is drinking the rain up now. In former years it was running off the surface. He thinks this is a good sign and maybe the water level will raise.

The old High Street Cemetery has a great many yucca plants in bloom now. They are attractive in bloom and their sword like foliage is especially pleasing.

Harold Kromer, Columbus, is a pretty sophisticated fisherman. He has fished the waters of Canada many different summers. He was fishing in our pond the other evening, using his evening lure. And he caught a fifteen-inch big mouth bass.

Sophisticated or not, he was mighty excited and kept yelling, "I gotta fish! I gotta fish!" It's the biggest one caught in our pond that we know of.

When Dr. Jean Stevenson, Cincinnati, saw the Korde's Perfecta rose in bloom at the Elmon Richards he told them he thought it was the most perfect color he had ever seen in this particular rose.

All the Stevensons are rose fanciers. I think maybe they caught the virus from their sister, Mrs. Tom Haber, Columbus. The Habers now specialize in hollies, rhododendrons and wild flowers.

AND SPEAKING of Elmon Richards, He is said to put out marvelous barbecued steaks for his guests. I saw the barbecue. It's a most interesting one sent by a friend in Oklahoma. The barbecue is under cover with a metal hood to catch the smoke.

Garden Gossip

The Emmitt Tooles, Saltcreek Twp., telephoned that their Americana was blooming. They have several new roses. These are under Mr. Toole's province. He reported to his wife that Americana was a really beautiful rose.

The Tooles also have snapdragons and dahlias blooming full tilt.

Mrs. Ella Hornbeck and Mrs. George Steely have been swapping flowers for years. Mrs. Hornbeck fell in love with the blue daisy in Mrs. Steely's garden last year. So she was given a start. It did not live over the winter she reported.

Loring Hill had made seven or eight of the arrangements for the tables at the Meade Fish fry. The prettiest one was lavender roses and nandina blossoms in a shell like container with one of lavender.

TALK about Custer's Last Stand, I made my last stand against the weeds in my garden. I literally pulled tons of weeds. There were lots of vacant spaces after the weed pulling which I have filled in with annuals. It's mighty late for transplanting but these rains will help.

H. A. Strous brought his little granddaughter up for a swim in the pond. He looked at all the clover and all the bees and wondered how barefoot swimmers avoided the bees. They didn't. We had three bee sting casualties last week. One was Donna Strous.

Myrtle Noggle says her apricots are ripe now. Apricots from the tree are very rare in this locality. Man! That's real eating.

Mrs. Bud Parker says their pumpkin vines are really going to town. She did not know how vines could grow so fast. The pumpkins are from Halloween Pumpkin Innards which the Parkers saved.

Mrs. George Steely had an elegant little potted palm. We asked her if she ever watered it with salt water. She said "Land no!" She advised me to tell Mayor Gordon not to do so.

The Frankfort Garden Club held a workshop at Mrs. Reginald Blue's home to practice for the Ross County Fair Flower Show. Mrs. James Jackson Ewington was the instructor.

MRS. BLUE has received her midget waterlilies. These are for very small pools. She is planting hers in a big kettle on her patio.

Corilla Pontius has red water lilies blooming in her pool.

My glads wintered over in the ground again this year. They are in excellent condition. If anybody has any glads that are not particularly pretty, do try winter them over. I would not suggest that you do this with expensive corms but

Dear Abby...

By Abigail VanBuren

Don't Stutter - Tell Her!!

DEAR ABBY: Every time my mother-in-law sees me she looks me up and down to see if I am wearing anything new. Not that she would ever compliment me on how nice I look (she reserves those remarks for her daughter), but she is fond of saying, "Another new dress?" Or, "More new shoes?"

I do not run my husband into debt buying clothes. I happen to be a very shrewd shopper, and manage to get some outstanding buys on some expensive clothes. I have never told anyone what I pay for my things, but my mother-in-law knows style and quality, and this must bug her.

Should I ask my husband to set his mother straight, or should I tell her myself?

HALF-PRICE HELEN
DEAR HALF: Tell her yourself. It takes a girl with more on the ball to dress well with less on the bill.

DEAR ABBY: Some time ago you ran the following letter in your column:

"DEAR ABBY: This is going to be hard to believe, but it's a fact. I love a wonderful guy and he loves me. We want to get married, but he says the thought of the needle for the blood test makes him weak in the knees. He is 23 and I am 21. Is there a State where you don't need a blood test to get married? He says he'd drive a thousand miles.

WANTS TO GET MARRIED - and you replied:

"DEAR WANTS: There's Nevada in the West, Maryland in the East, Minnesota in the North and South Carolina in the South. It shouldn't be difficult to sew him up without a needle."

Abby, I wish you had told this

Dear Abby...

By Abigail VanBuren

Don't Stutter — Tell Her!!

DEAR ABBY: Every time my mother-in-law sees me she looks me up and down to see if I am wearing anything new. Not that she would ever compliment me on how nice I look (she reserves those remarks for her daughter), but she is fond of saying, "Another new dress?" Or, "More new shoes?"

I do not run my husband into debt buying clothes. I happen to be a very shrewd shopper, and manage to get some outstanding buys on some expensive clothes. I have never told anyone what I pay for my things, but my mother-in-law knows style and quality, and this must bug her.

Should I ask my husband to set his mother straight, or should I tell her myself?

HALF-PRICE HELEN
DEAR HALF: Tell her yourself. It takes a girl with more on the ball to dress well with less on the bill.

DEAR ABBY: Some time ago you ran the following letter in your column:

"DEAR ABBY: This is going to be hard to believe, but it's a fact. I love a wonderful guy and he loves me. We want to get married, but he says the thought of the needle for the blood test makes him weak in the knees. He is 23 and I am 21. Is there a State where you don't need a blood test to get married? He says he'd drive a thousand miles.

WANTS TO GET MARRIED — and you replied:

"DEAR WANTS: There's Nevada in the West, Maryland in the East, Minnesota in the North and South Carolina in the South. It shouldn't be difficult to sew him up without a needle."

Abby, I wish you had told this young woman that at 23 her "wonderful guy" has been stabbed by plenty of needles and survived them all. His fear of the blood test was the fear that he couldn't pass. Furthermore, "Miss Wants" should be told that the blood test is for her own protection, the protection of her future children, and society a large; and she should insist on marriage only in a State that requires it. This free advice is based on many years' experience in Domestic Relations Court.

ATTORNEY, LL.B., Ph. D.

DEAR ABBY: I am a young widow with four small children. My income is limited. I would like to know if it is proper to ask the man who takes me out to pay for my baby-sitter?

WONDERING
DEAR WONDERING: It is not proper to ASK him. But you can hint a little and, if he OFFERS, it is proper to accept.

CONFIDENTIAL TO "DOWN IN THE MOUTH": So was Jonah, and he liced through it. Chin up!

What's bothering you? For a personal reply, write to Abby Box 3365, Beverly Hills, Calif. Include a stamped, self-addressed envelope.

Mt. Sterling Pipeline Due

Work will begin soon on a $29,000 Ohio Fuel Gas Co. pipeline construction project to improve natural gas service in Mt. Sterling and extend natural gas service to the new Robertson Fence Co. plant north of Schaefer Avenue and southeast of the Mt. Sterling corporation line.

D. R. Cotterman, Circleville manager for Ohio Fuel, said more than a mile of new pipeline — 4 to 6 inches in diameter — will be laid along Main Street from east of John St. to High St., north along High St. to Chestnut St., and southeast along Chestnut St. and across country to the new plant.

The new line will replace a section of existing smaller diameter line east of High St. and extend natural gas service to the new Robertson Fence Co. plant.

Robertson Fence Co. has requested gas service to be used in heating and processing operations, Cotterman pointed out.

Ohio Pipeline Construction Co. of Newark will build the new pipeline for Ohio Fuel. Work is expected to be completed about September 1, Cotterman said.

Farmer Today Does Better Than Granddad

Present Day Producer Quick To Make Shift In Production Plans

By OVID A. MARTIN

WASHINGTON (AP) — Today's farmers are doing a better job than their fathers and grandfathers did keeping abreast of developments that affect farm prices.

Evidence of this: Present-day producers are quicker to make shifts in production plans than their predecessors.

Hog producers recently indicated they were slowing down on an up-trend in production because of a danger of overproduction and low prices next year.

Now poultry producers are taking a like line. This was pointed out in an Agriculture Department poultry situation report.

"The egg price outlook for the late fall and winter of 1961 has been somewhat brightened by declines from last year in the number of egg-type chicks hatched in May and June," the report said.

"The earlier price outlook was related to farmers' plans to buy 12 per cent more chicks than last year, and to early-season hatchery operations at an even higher level."

But recognizing that if they carried out these plans egg prices would be greatly depressed by another period of overproduction, poultrymen adjusted their plans quickly. As a consequence, January-June hatchings of egg-type chicks averaged only 5 per cent higher than in 1961 instead of the earlier plans for a 12 per cent increase.

The year-end flock of layers is likely to be up only modestly—perhaps 2 per cent—from the 340 million on hand at the beginning of this year. The prospective increase is less than half of what government officials anticipated earlier.

WASHINGTON (AP)—The nation's cattle population continues to increase. An Agriculture Department survey shows this year's calf crop will be 1 per cent larger than last year and the largest since 1957.

The crop was forecast at 39,658,000 head. It covers both dairy and beef calves.

WASHINGTON (AP) — World production of meat climbed to a new record high in 1960 with the

Peacetime Budget Near Record High

WASHINGTON (AP) — President Kennedy has called on Congress for $3.454 billion of new military and home defense spending that will push this year's red ink budget to a peacetime record outlay of $87.73 billion.

If Congress approves — and legislators seemed to be in the mood to vote billions for defense — the deficit would rise to a figure estimated officially at "more than $5 billion."

Kennedy's warning — Tuesday night — that he will ask a tax increase next year if necessary to keep "strictly in balance" the fiscal 1963 budget, starting next July 1 — was not repeated in today's brief, unadorned recital of fiscal bad news.

There was a prospect the deficit will be ballooned into an even higher figure than Kennedy set. It was raised by the staff of the Joint Senate-House Committee on Internal Revenue Taxation in a report issued almost simultaneously with Kennedy's new money request.

The report did not take into account the newly proposed military spending but challenged the administration's previous estimate that the current 1962 deficit would total $3.7 billion.

Actually, the staff said the prospective deficit would have been $4.9 billion regardless of the further build-up for Berlin.

"An increase in defense spending might bring increased economic activity, higher levels of income and profits than those assumed by the staff, and some increase in revenues in fiscal 1963," the congressional report said.

"But it seems unlikely that the increase in revenues would be as great as the increase in expenditures," the report added.

Intensified White House pressure on Congress to close tax loopholes, raise postal rates by $800 million and tap other sources of untaxed income were signaled Tuesday night.

payse 'samsaun asap jo isoun in Kennedy's address to the na-

United States still retaining first position far in front of its nearest rival, the Soviet Union.

The Foreign Agricultural Service reports production in 41 leading countries which produce about 85 per cent of the world supply totaled 99 billion pounds last year. Of this, the United States produced 28 billion and Russia 13.6 billion.

The Soviet Union was far ahead in the percentage gain over the 1951-55 average production — an increase of 53 per cent compared with 15 per cent for this country.

Most of these measures, asked in January, still are languishing in congressional committees. Kennedy said they must be enacted to hold this year's deficit to a tolerable level and to provide a fiscal 1963 budget that is "strictly in balance."

In thus launching a late-session drive to rescue the loophole-plugging bills, Kennedy said he realized that the proposals—aimed at extracting more taxes from expense-account spending, overseas income, dividends, interest, and farm and other cooperatives — would not be welcomed by everyone.

"But I am certain that every American wants to pay his fair share, and not leave the burden of defending freedom entirely on those who bear arms," said Kennedy.

"For we have mortgaged our very future on this defense—and we cannot fail to meet the payments."

There were gaps in the fiscal story. Kennedy did not specify, for instance, how much of the $3,454,000,000 additional defense appropriations—$207 million of it for civil defense—he wants would be spent in this fiscal year, which started July 1.

Mt. Sterling Pipeline Due

Work will begin soon on a $29,000 Ohio Fuel Gas Co. pipeline construction project to improve natural gas service in Mt. Sterling and extend natural gas service to the new Robertson Fence Co. plant north of Schadel Avenue and southeast of the Mt. Sterling corporation line.

D. R. Cotterman, Circleville manager for Ohio Fuel, said more than a mile of new pipeline — 4 to 6 inches in diameter — will be laid along Main Street from east of John St. to High St., north along High St. to Chestnut St., and southeast along Chestnut St. and across country to the new plant.

The new line will replace a section of existing smaller diameter line east of High St. and extend natural gas service to the new Robertson Fence Co. plant.

Robertson Fence Co. has requested gas service to be used in heating and processing operations, Cotterman pointed out.

Ohio Pipeline Construction Co. of Newark will build the new pipeline for Ohio Fuel. Work is expected to be completed about September 1, Cotterman said.

Farmer Today Does Better Than Granddad

Present Day Producer Quick To Make Shift In Production Plans

By OVID A. MARTIN

WASHINGTON (AP) — Today's farmers are doing a better job than their fathers and grandfathers did keeping abreast of developments that affect farm prices.

Evidence of this: Present-day producers are quicker to make shifts in production plans than their predecessors.

Hog producers recently indicated they were slowing down on an up-trend in production because of a danger of overproduction and low prices next year.

Now poultry producers are taking a like line. This was pointed out in an Agriculture Department poultry situation report.

"The egg price outlook for the late fall and winter of 1961 has been somewhat brightened by declines from last year in the number of egg-type chicks hatched in May and June," the report said.

"The earlier price outlook was related to farmers' plans to buy 12 per cent more chicks than last year, and to early-season hatchery operations at an even higher level."

But recognizing that if they carried out these plans egg prices would be greatly depressed by another period of overproduction, poultrymen adjusted their plans quickly. As a consequence, January-June hatchings of egg-type chicks averaged only 5 per cent higher than in 1961 instead of the earlier plans for a 12 per cent increase.

The year-end flock of layers is likely to be up only modestly—perhaps 2 per cent—from the 340 million on hand at the beginning of this year. The prospective increase is less than half of what government officials anticipated earlier.

WASHINGTON (AP)—The nation's cattle population continues to increase. An Agriculture Department survey shows this year's calf crop will be 1 per cent larger than last year and the largest since 1957.

The crop was forecast at 39,658,000 head. It covers both dairy and beef calves.

Peacetime Budget Near Record High

WASHINGTON (AP) — President Kennedy has called on Congress for $3.454 billion of new military and home defense spending that will push this year's red ink budget to a peacetime record outlay of $87.73 billion.

If Congress approves — and legislators seemed to be in the mood to vote billions for defense — the deficit would rise to a figure estimated officially at "more than $5 billion."

Kennedy's warning — Tuesday night—that he will ask a tax increase next year if necessary to keep "strictly in balance" the fiscal 1963 budget, starting next July 1—was not repeated in today's brief, unadorned recital of fiscal bad news.

There was a prospect the deficit will be ballooned into an even higher figure than Kennedy set. It was raised by the staff of the Joint Senate-House Committee on Internal Revenue Taxation in a report issued almost simultaneously with Kennedy's new money request.

The report did not take into account the newly proposed military spending but challenged the administration's previous estimate that the current 1962 deficit would total $3.7 billion.

Actually, the staff said the prospective deficit would have been $4.9 billion regardless of the further build-up for Berlin.

"An increase in defense spending might bring increased economic activity, higher levels of income and profits than those assumed by the staff, and some increase in revenues in fiscal 1963," the congressional report said.

"But it seems unlikely that the increase in revenues would be as great as the increase in expenditures," the report added.

Intensified White House pressure on Congress to close tax loopholes, raise postal rates by $800 million and tap other sources of untaxed income were signaled Tuesday night.

parke 'sarnsbow asaqi jo jsoiu in Kennedy's address to the na-

United States still retaining first position far in front of its nearest rival, the Soviet Union.

The Foreign Agricultural Service reports production in 41 leading countries which produce about 85 per cent of the world supply totaled 99 billion pounds last year. Of this, the United States produced 28 billion and Russia 13.6 billion.

The Soviet Union was far ahead in the percentage gain over the 1951-55 average production — an increase of 53 per cent compared with 15 per cent for this country.

Most of these measures, asked in January, still are languishing in congressional committees. Kennedy said they must be enacted to hold this year's deficit to a tolerable level and to provide a fiscal 1963 budget that is "strictly in balance."

In thus launching a late-session drive to rescue the loophole-plugging bills, Kennedy said he realized that the proposals—aimed at extracting more taxes from expense-account spending, overseas income, dividends, interest, and farm and other cooperatives — would not be welcomed by everyone.

"But I am certain that every American wants to pay his fair share, and not leave the burden of defending freedom entirely on those who bear arms," said Kennedy.

"For we have mortgaged our very future on this defense—and we cannot fail to meet the payments."

There were gaps in the fiscal story. Kennedy did not specify, for instance, how much of the $3,454,000,000 additional defense appropriations—$207 million of it for civil defense—he wants would be spent in this fiscal year, which started July 1.

Ratterman Grand Jury Takes Recess

LEXINGTON, Ky. (AP) — The federal grand jury probing the George Ratterman case adjourned Tuesday after hearing "very fruitful" testimony from an unidentified witness.

Ronald Goldfarb, U.S. Justice Department attorney assisting with the investigation, said the jury would reconvene in a week or two.

He also termed Tuesday's testimony very fruitful but did not elaborate.

The jury is investigating the possible violation of the civil rights of Ratterman, reform candidate for Campbell County sheriff.

Ratterman claimed he was drugged and framed after his arrest with a strip tease dancer in a Newport hotel room two months ago.

U.S. Legal Aides Quit in Columbus

COLUMBUS, Ohio (AP) — Two young assistant United States district attorneys here are resigning to enter private law practice.

The two—James H. Williams, 27, and Thomas S. Schattenfield, 34—have been in government work since graduating from law school. Williams' resignation is effective Aug. 11; Schattenfield's Aug. 23.

Williams, who primarily handled land cases for the government, is joining a law firm in Alliance.

Schattenfield will return to Washington to join a law firm there.

The World Today

WASHINGTON (AP) — Short of an explosion, you'd better get used to an angry Berlin problem which will boil up again and again for years.

It's a mixed-up and, in a sense, an ironic mess. Even President Kennedy isn't expressing hope for a permanent Berlin solution now.

He said in his TV talk Tuesday night there is "no quick and easy solution." Before he was President he said the dilemma would not be solved for years.

This is what's likely to happen if there's no war now: Temporary arrangements to reduce the heat and then another flare-up.

Nothing shows better what a mess it is than Kennedy's statement Tuesday night: "Berlin is not a part of East Germany, but a separate territory under control of the Allied powers. Thus our rights are clear and firmly rooted."

Those rights may be clear in the Western mind but not necessarily clear in the thinking of the Russians or the East German Communists.

Berlin lies 110 miles inside Communist East Germany, over and through which lie all the supply routes to Berlin. But Berlin itself is two cities, not one.

East Berlin is under East German Communist control. In West Berlin, whose almost 2½ million people's sympathies are with West Germany, the United States, Britain and France have almost 11,000 troops as a symbol of Western support for them.

It's easy to imagine how Americans would feel if, say, Kansas City, in the heart of the United States, was a Communist-run town whose links were with Russia and whose supplies and visitors came from there.

What then does Kennedy mean by saying the West has "rights" to Berlin? The U.S. government argues this way:

In agreements made with Russia during and after World War II Allied troops were to stay in Berlin until the victors in the war signed a peace treaty with a new German government.

(The Soviets say, in effect, all this is now out of date and it's about time a peace treaty was finally signed.)

But the trouble is there are two Germanies: the West German government of Chancellor Adenauer, allied to the West; and the East German Communist government which is actually a Russian puppet.

Adenauer insists in peace treaty with East Germany should be signed because this would mean the Allies agreed there could be two Germanies. He wants, and the United States backs him up,

Dior Line Salutes String Bean Variety

PARIS (AP)—The new Dior line is a salute to the string bean. Marc Bohan's creations, shown this morning, not only fit—they cling like a glove. With the audience, it was the big hit of the season.

Named "Charin 62," Bohan's latest line hugs the figure to the knee, where the hemline stops in a tiny flare. The waist, instead of being nipped, is widely hugged by a corselet band or belt.

It is the first full-hearted return to a tight fitting silhouette. Audience applause and comments were enthusiastic for the first time in a rather ho-hum season.

As second string to his bow, Bohan also made skirts that flared jauntily from the hip. There were some bell and gathered evening skirts, but far more sinuous heaths.

Many hemlines showed a sliver of knee, ranking among the shortest of the season, and scotching the rumor that the designer might drop his skirts this time.

Hats are tiny head-hugging helmets that frame the brow, hiding all the hair.

Jacqueline Kennedy's sister, Princess Lee Radzwill, sat in the main salon in a black sheath and pearls, jotting notes. Mrs. Bohan, the designer's wife, occupied a place among the working press.

In a sleeveless red linen dress with pleated skirt, she soon took off dark harlequin glasses to gaze with unconcealed enthusiasm at her husband's models. She found nearly everything "tres jolie" (very pretty), and clapped heartily for many numbers.

By James Marlow

just one single German government for all Germany.

In short: A peace treaty with East Germany would mean and legalize the indefinite division of Germany. So long as the Allies do not sign with East Germany, Adenauer can hope for a single, united Germany some day.

How then could the two Germanies be united? This country suggests, and Russia wants no part of it, that the people in the two Germanies be allowed free and open elections to choose a new, single German government for all of them.

The reason the Russians won't buy is this: They control East Germany now. In a free election the East Germans would probably vote for a single, non-Communist government.

(And in fairness: It is understandable that the Russians—after what a single German government did to them in World War II—may genuinely fear seeing a new, all powerful, single German government again. So long as Germany is divided, its strength is split.)

But even now the East German Communists don't have full control of their territory. For instance: The Russians, not the East Germans, control those supply routes to Berlin.

The Russians threaten—whether or not the Allies do it—to sign a separate peace treaty with East Germany and give control of the Berlin supply routes to them.

This would put the Allies in a goofy box: They'd have to get permission for sending supplies and people to Berlin from an East German government they don't even recognize as a government.

All kinds of mix-ups could happen then although the East Germans would hardly try to shut off Berlin without Soviet approval since they'd have to depend on Russian support if the West decided to smash its way through.

And here is the note of irony: Not only the Russians but probably millions of people in the United States, France and Britain—remembering what a single big Germany did in the war—don't want to see the two Germanies united.

Nevertheless, the United States keeps telling the Russians Germany must be unified while knowing the Russians won't agree to any such thing.

Weekly Food Review

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

Abundant and cheap beef continues to reign as chief of the weekend specials at supermarkets and neighborhood stores this week.

Top grade steaks and roasts are the cheapest in 15 years.

The price of grain-fed steers recently fell to $23.50 per 100 pounds at Chicago, the lowest since World War II. Heavy supplies have driven prices down.

Supermarkets are featuring sirloin, porterhouse and round steak and rib, chuck and round roasts.

Fowl runs beef a close second in popularity at this time. The chains are offering fryers and roasting chickens, turkeys and ducks.

Hams and leg of lamb also are among the specials.

In the East, crabmeat, shrimp, scallops and smelt are featured. With hot weather cutting into production, egg prices rose two to four cents a dozen.

New arrivals continue to flood the vegetable and fruit markets.

Best buys among vegetables are beets, beans, cabbage, bulk carrots, nearby celery, Chinese cabbage, corn, endive, escarole, green onions, dry onions, all near-by lettuce, parsley, peppers, potatoes, tomatoes and watercress.

Good buys are broccoli, carrots in film bags, California celery, cucumbers, kale, collards, mustard and turnip greens, eggplant, California iceberg lettuce, mushrooms, Western dry onions, okra radishes and spinach.

Best buys among fruits are blueberries, mangoes, limes, peaches, strawberries and watermelons.

Apples, cantaloupes, honeydew melons, grapes, plums and apricots are good buys.

BATAVIA, N. Y. (AP) — There soon will be a touch of the 20th Century alongside a Revolutionary War era landmark in this city in western New York. Governor Asks Reappraisal Of State's 'Total Needs'

COLUMBUS, Ohio (AP)—Consistent with his earlier veto of all state appropriations for the second year of the new biennium, Gov. Michael DiSalle Wednesday vetoed the second-year appropriation in a bill to increase the strength of the highway patrol by 100 men.

The governor asked the law makers to sustain the new veto

along with the partial veto of the general appropriations measure "in order that the total needs of the state may be reappraised for the second year of the biennium."

At the same time, the governor announced that he is permitting to become law without his signature an act which sets up a definite formula spelling out the financial responsibility of persons who have close relatives in the state mental institutions.

He complained that the act contains a basic inequity which might be unconstitutional. He referred to a provision which forgives all obligations for such support payments incurred before Jan. 1, 1956.

"This means," he said in a prepared statement, "that those people who have struggled to pay are being treated the same as those who could have paid, but avoided their responsibility. To me this is unfair and creates an injustice before the law . . ."

In his message on the highway patrol bill, DiSalle expressed displeasure with one provision inserted late in the legislative consideration of the measure, but he said he was not applying an item veto to the section because he did not want to delay the increase in the patrol's size.

The section to which he referred requires the department of highway safety to furnish to insurance companies or attorneys copies of hitherto confidential reports of patrol and police investigations of traffic accidents.

"I don't think the state should be in the business of furnishing that kind of service," he told newsmen.

He also raised the question whether the insertion of the section in the Senate Finance Committee might be in violation of a constitutional provision that each bill must deal with only one subject.

High School Girl Rounds Up 6 Tons of Books for Africa

CANOGA PARK, Calif. (AP)—It took seven months, but Judy Way has found a way to deliver six tons of books to Africa.

In May 1960 Judy, then a junior at Canoga Park High School, saw an appeal to send books to Africa. She enlisted a group of her journalism classmates, and became chairman of the school's books for Africa drive.

The drive started in a small way—a few books here, a few there. A Los Angeles bookstore went out of business and donated 300 volumes. Then Judy found a way to get books rejected by the Los Angeles City Library.

Clubs heard of the drive, and the books piled higher in a bungalow on the school campus. Judy decided to see about getting them to Africa.

"I started writing letters in December," she said. "I kept writing them and writing them and writing them."

"The book is just kept coming in and coming in."

"We kept trying for transportation. We didn't know what to do."

She wrote President Kennedy, his reply said to try the U.S. Information Agency.

The USIA liked the idea, but wanted new books, Judy said. G. Mennen Williams, assistant

Ratterman Grand Jury Takes Recess

LEXINGTON, Ky. (AP) — The federal grand jury probing the George Ratterman case adjourned Tuesday after hearing "very fruitful" testimony from an unidentified witness.

Ronald Goldfarb, U.S. Justice Department attorney assisting with the investigation, said the jury would reconvene in a week or two.

He also termed Tuesday's testimony very fruitful but did not elaborate.

The jury is investigating the possible violation of the civil rights of Ratterman, reform candidate for Campbell County sheriff.

Ratterman claimed he was drugged and framed after his arrest with a strip tease dancer in a Newport hotel room two months ago.

U.S. Legal Aides Quit in Columbus

COLUMBUS, Ohio (AP) — Two young assistant United States district attorneys here are resigning to enter private law practice.

The two—James H. Williams, 27, and Thomas S. Schattenfield, 34—have been in government work since graduating from law school. Williams' resignation is effective Aug. 11; Schattenfield's Aug. 23.

Williams, who primarily handled land cases for the government, is joining a law firm in Alliance.

Schatenfield will return to Washington to join a law firm there.

The World Today

WASHINGTON (AP) — Short of an explosion, you'd better get used to an angry Berlin problem which will boil up again and again for years.

It's a mixed-up and, in a sense, an ironic mess. Even President Kennedy isn't expressing hope for a permanent Berlin solution now.

He said in his TV talk Tuesday night there is "no quick and easy solution." Before he was President he said the dilemma would not be solved for years.

This is what's likely to happen if there's no war now: Temporary arrangements to reduce the heat and then another flare-up.

Nothing shows better what a mess it is than Kennedy's statement Tuesday night: "Berlin is not a part of East Germany, but a separate territory under control of the Allied powers. Thus our rights are clear and firmly rooted."

Those rights may be clear in the Western mind but not necessarily clear in the thinking of the Russians or the East German Communists.

Berlin lies 110 miles inside Communist East Germany, over and through which lie all the supply routes to Berlin. But Berlin itself is two cities, not one.

East Berlin is under East German Communist control. In West Berlin, whose almost 2½ million people's sympathies are with West Germany, the United States, Britain and France have almost 11,000 troops as a symbol of Western support for them.

It's easy to imagine how Americans would feel if, say, Kansas City, in the heart of the United States, was a Communist-run town whose links were with Russia and whose supplies and visitors came from there.

What then does Kennedy mean by saying the West has "rights" to Berlin? The U.S. government

Iberia School Vote Refuses Transfer

MARION, Ohio (AP)—A proposal to transfer territory of Iberia School District in Morrow County to the Gallon City School District in Crawford County has been rejected by voters in a special election, 488 against to 307 for.

Two of three registered voters in a precinct of Tully Township of eastern Marion County cast ballots in the special election. The third is in the Armed Forces.

After failure of the proposal, the Morrow County Board of Education in a special meeting ordered consolidation of the Iberia and Johnsville schools.

argues this way:

In agreements made with Russia during and after World War II Allied troops were to stay in Berlin until the victors in the war signed a peace treaty with a new German government.

(The Soviets say, in effect, all this is now out of date and it's about time a peace treaty was finally signed.)

But the trouble is there are two Germanies: the West German government of Chancellor Adenauer, allied to the West; and the East German Communist government which is actually a Russian puppet.

Adenauer insists in peace treaty with East Germany should be signed because this would mean the Allies agreed there could be two Germanies. He wants, and the United States backs him up,

Dior Line Salutes String Bean Variety

PARIS (AP)—The new Dior line is a salute to the string bean. Marc Bohan's creations, shown this morning, not only fit—they cling like a glove. With the audience, it was the big hit of the season.

Named "Charm 62," Bohan's latest line hugs the figure to the knee, where the hemline stops in a tiny flare. The waist, instead of being nipped, is widely hugged by a corset band or belt.

It is the first full-hearted return to a tight fitting silhouette. Audience applause and comments were enthusiastic for the first time in a rather ho-hum season.

As second string to his bow, Bohan also made skirts that flared jauntily from the hip. There were some bell and gathered evening skirts, but far more sinuous hems.

Many hemlines showed a sliver of knee, ranking among the shortest of the season, and scotching the rumor that the designer might drop his skirts this time.

Hats are tiny head-bugging helmets that frame the brow, hiding all the hair. Jacqueline Kennedy's sister, Princess Lee Radziwill, sat in the main salon in a black sheath and pearls, jotting notes. Mrs. Bohan, the designer's wife, occupied a place among the working press. In a sleeveless red linen dress with pleated skirt, she soon took off dark harlequin glasses to gaze with unconcealed enthusiasm at her husband's models. She found nearly everything "tres jolie" (very pretty), and clapped heartily for many numbers.

Weekly Food Review

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS
Abundant and cheap beef continues to reign as chief of the weekend specials at supermarkets and neighborhood stores this week.

Top grade steaks and roasts are the cheapest in 15 years.

The price of grain-fed steers recently fell to $23.50 per 100 pounds at Chicago, the lowest since World War II. Heavy supplies have driven prices down.

Supermarkets are featuring sirloin, porterhouse and round steak and rib, chuck and round roasts.

Fowl runs beef a close second in popularity at this time. The chains are offering fryers and roasting chickens, turkeys and ducks.

Hams and leg of lamb also are among the specials.

In the East, crabmeat, shrimp, scallops and smelt are featured. With hot weather cutting into production, egg prices rose two to four cents a dozen.

New arrivals continue to flood the vegetable and fruit markets. Best buys among vegetables are beets, beans, cabbage, bulk carrots, nearby celery, chinese cabbage, corn, endive, escarole, green onions, dry onions, all nearby lettuce, parsley, peppers, potatoes, tomatoes and watercress.

Good buys are broccoli, carrots in film bags, California celery, cucumbers, kale, collards, mustard and turnip greens, eggplant, California iceberg lettuce, mushrooms, Western dry onions, okra radishes and spinach.

Best buys among fruits are blueberries, mangoes, limes, peaches, strawberries and watermelons.

Apples, cantaloupes, honeydew melons, grapes, plums and apricots are good buys.

New Joins Old

BATAVIA, N. Y. (AP)—There soon will be a touch of the 20th Century alongside a Revolutionary War era landmark in this city in western New York. The board of supervisors has authorized construction of a model fallout shelter on the lawn of the Holland Land Office museum, which was built early in the 1800's and contains many relics more than 200 years old.

Governor Asks Reappraisal Of State's 'Total Needs'

COLUMBUS, Ohio (AP)—Consistent with his earlier veto of all state appropriations for the second year of the new biennium, Gov. Michael DiSalle Wednesday vetoed the second-year appropriation in a bill to increase the strength of the highway patrol by 100 men.

The governor asked the law makers to sustain the new veto

along with the partial veto of the general appropriations measure "in order that the total needs of the state may be reappraised for the second year of the biennium."

At the same time, the governor announced that he is permitting to become law without his signature an act which sets up a definite formula spelling out the financial responsibility of persons who have close relatives in the state mental institutions.

He complained that the act contains a basic inequity which might be unconstitutional. He referred to a provision which forgives all obligations for such support payments incurred before Jan. 1, 1956.

"This means," he said in a prepared statement, "that those people who have struggled to pay are being treated the same as those who could have paid, but avoided their responsibility. To me this is unfair and creates an injustice before the law."

In his message on the highway patrol bill, DiSalle expressed displeasure with one provision inserted late in the legislative consideration of the measure, but he said he was not applying an item veto to the section because he did not want to delay the increase in the patrol's size.

The section to which he referred requires the department of highway safety to furnish to insurance companies or attorneys copies of hitherto confidential reports of patrol and police investigations of traffic accidents.

"I don't think the state should be in the business of furnishing that kind of service," he told newsmen.

He also raised the question whether the insertion of the section in the Senate Finance Committee might be in violation of a constitutional provision that each bill must deal with only one subject.

High School Girl Rounds Up 6 Tons of Books for Africa

CANOGA PARK, Calif. (AP)—It took seven months, but Judy Way has found a way to deliver six tons of books to Africa.

In May 1960 Judy, then a junior at Canoga Park High School, saw an appeal to send books to Africa. She enlisted a group of her journalism classmates, and became chairman of the school's books for Africa drive.

The drive started in a small way—a few books here, a few there. A Los Angeles bookstore went out of business and donated 300 volumes. Then Judy found a way to get books rejected by the Los Angeles City Library.

Clubs heard of the drive, and the books piled higher in a bungalow on the school campus. Judy decided to see about getting them to Africa.

"I started writing letters in December," she said. "I kept writing them and writing them and writing them."

"The book is just kept coming in and coming in. We kept trying for transportation. We didn't know what to do."

She wrote President Kennedy, his reply said to try the U.S. Information Agency.

The USIA liked the idea, but wanted new books, Judy said. G. Mennen Williams, assistant

Herald Drops Williamsport

The Herald Little League outfit took a night off from regular loop play to defeat Williamsport, 9-3, in an exhibition contest on the loser's home field last night.

The home squad took a 1-0 advantage in the second inning as Cook and Palmer singled and I. Cook doubled. They were blanked by starting hurler Dan Justice in the third.

The Herald took a 2-1 lead in the top of the third frame as Joe Winner doubled. In the fourth, Williamsport added one counter as Hamman singled, but the paper crew led the win with a six-run assault.

Gibbs, Curl and Young doubled and Winner, Bethel and Humble singled to pace the winner's attack. Neither team scored in the fifth. In the sixth, The Herald

Booster Clubs Merge; Plan Fair Projects

Booster clubs representing supporters of Walnut, Ashville and Scioto high schools have merged to form the new Teays Valley Booster Club.

This move paved the way for functioning of supporters of the three institutions as a single unit in the new Teays Valley School District. A consolidated high school will replace the three smaller schools by September, 1962.

Spokesmen for the new group said "We hope by merging now and working together we will better qualify ourselves to function more smoothly together when the new building opens."

They further added "We want to establish a bigger and better club to insure congenial relations among district parents and provide active support of athletics and other activities."

THE FIRST project for the combined organization will be the sponsorship of a food booth during the 1961 Pickaway County Fair. Mrs. Robert Hoover is chairman of this effort.

Anyone from the three districts willing to work at the booth is urged to contact Mrs. Hoover for information.

Elks' Pitcher Halts Drugmen By 5-1 Margin

Market Nine Clubs Dairy Team; IOOF Clipped by Jaycees

Bobby Dean, used sparingly on the mound this year by the Elks, took full advantage of his starting assignment against Bingman's Drugs last night, turning in a 5-1 four-hit win.

Ward's market got back on the winning trail in the Little League minor division, thumping Blue Ribbon Dairy, 29-3. The Jaycees outdistanced IOOF by a 17-7 count.

Drug hurler Tom Cassill got in trouble after Ted Herron had grounded out to open the tilt. Butch Watson tripled and stole home to give the BPOE outfit a one-run bulge.

Bruce Tigner doubled for Bingman's in the last of the first, but failed to score as Dean fanned the side. In the second, Bob Walisa doubled and John Funk plated him with a stinging two-bagger for the Elks.

THE CONTEST settled down to a pitcher's duel through the fifth as neither team pushed through a marker. In the top of the sixth Herron rocked Cassill for a double with two away. Watson followed with a single and duplicated his earlier base-running feat by stealing home again.

Dean whacked a double and steamed across as Walisa tripled to close the three-run barrage. Bingman's threatened briefly in the bottom of the frame as Benzenburg doubled and scored on Tim Stonerock's triple. Dean got losing hurler Cassill to fly out to end the tilt, however.

Bob Tootle lead off with a home run for Ward's and the market squad just kept going. Yeates doubled in the second as they tallied two runs. In the third, Bryce Brown homered and Eric Downing doubled to spark a six-hit, eight-run thrust. The grocers picked up three more in the fourth as Yeates and Jim Mogan singled.

In the fifth Eric Downing and Mogan doubled to help produce six Ward's counters. They closed with a nine-run slugging spectacular as Downing doubled again and Tootle, Yeates, Brown, Funk, Mogan and Mark Downing all hit safely.

Blue Ribbon marked its first tally in the fifth as Moorehead doubled. In the sixth they got two runs without a hit. Tootle was the winner and Castigion absorbed the pounding for the defeat.

JAYCEES jumped off to a 3-2 lead over IOOF after the first inning. The Junior Chamber outfit added eight more in the second as Martin doubled and Allen cracked two singles. Five walks from losing moundsman Adams helped the uprising.

After scoring one in the third and another single in the fourth, Jaycees bowed out with a four-run salvo on hits by Ankrom and Sark. IOOF challenged winning pitcher Melson in the sixth frame, marking five runs on as many walks and Fausnaugh's two-bagger, but Melson whiffed Ayers and Grable to end the game.

Ironton Squads Win in Playoff At Lewis Park

American Legion Post No. 590, playing out of Ironton, turned back Calvary Lutheran Church of Chillicothe, 2-1, as Fossett and Lewis doubled for a pair of last-inning counters in the first District Softball Tournament contest last night at Ted Lewis Park.

In the second game, the Chamberlain crew of Ironton blasted Norman's Tavern of Chillicothe by a 9-0 margin.

Tonight marks the beginning of one-game-a-night play in the tourney. Larry's Barber Shop of Laurelville faces Hallsville. The Hallsville squad defeated Tarlton Athletic Club, 4-0, in an earlier play-off tilt.

LL Score Reversed

First National Bank defeated Circleville Oil, 15-4, in a Little League contest at the Fairgrounds Tuesday night. The score had been reversed in the original report.

Bases-Loaded Homer Topples BR All-Stars

A grand - slam home run shot in the top of the fifth inning spelled disaster for Circleville's Babe Ruth League all - star squad last night in the district tournament finals at New Carlisle.

Until the deciding blow, Circleville had maintained a 3-0 lead over the Columbus National division all - star crew.

In the bottom of the first, Skip Lutz hoisted a towering home run to give the locals a 1-0 edge. After being shut out by Columbus pitcher Porterfield in the second, Circleville came up with a pair of tallies in the third as Howard Dade singled and scored and Lutz traveled the circuit on steals after being plunked by a pitch.

Porterfield tightened his control to blank the Roundtowners without a safety over the rest of the route.

IN THE top of the fifth, George Reeser gave up singles to Robb and White wrapped around a walk to Shepard. Ringheiser ran the count to 3-and-2 before unleashing his soaring homer to clear the sacks.

The Pickaway Countians couldn't get back into the game after that, and Columbus registered an insurance marker in the sixth as Porterfield and White smacked one-baggers.

The loss knocked Circleville out of contention for the state BRL crown. They finished as runnerup team in the tourney at New Carlisle, and received an elaborate trophy for their efforts.

Co-manager Chet Iery said today, "Every boy on the team put out in effort all the way. We have every reason to be very proud of the way they handled themselves."

Herald Drops Williamsport

The Herald Little League outfit took a night off from regular play to defeat Williamsport, 9-3, in an exhibition contest on the loser's home field last night.

The home squad took a 1-0 advantage in the second inning as Cook and Palmer singled and I. Cook doubled. They were blanked by starting hurler Dan Justice in the third.

The Herald took a 2-1 lead in the top of the third frame as Joe Winner doubled. In the fourth, Williamsport added one counter as Hamman singled, but the paper crew iced the win with a six-run assault.

Gibbs, Curl and Young doubled and Winner, Bethel and Humble singled to pace the winner's attack. Neither team scored in the fifth. In the sixth, The Herald

Booster Clubs Merge; Plan Fair Projects

Booster clubs representing supporters of Walnut, Ashville and Scioto high schools have merged to form the new Teays Valley Booster Club.

This move paved the way for functioning of supporters of the three institutions as a single unit in the new Teays Valley School District. A consolidated high school will replace the three smaller schools by September, 1962.

Spokesmen for the new group said "We hope by merging now and working together we will better qualify ourselves to function more smoothly together when the new building opens."

They further added "We want to establish a bigger and better club to insure congenial relations among district parents and provide active support of athletics and other activities."

THE FIRST project for the combined organization will be the sponsorship of a food booth during the 1961 Pickaway County Fair. Mrs. Robert Hoover is chairman of this effort.

Anyone from the three districts willing to work at the booth is urged to contact Mrs. Hoover for information.

Hoovers Sweep Tuesday Honors

The Hoovers swept the field of scoring honors in the latest Tuesday Mixed League bowling at Circle D Lanes.

Glyn Hoover paced series efforts with a 577 total. Fred Hoover marked the high single game on a blistering 246. Ed Reynolds took runnerup series laurels with 570 and Ward Skinner finished in third position on 556.

The Reynolds - Hoover quintet outdistanced all comers in team series play with a 2,181 final.

Verna Reynolds converted the 5-6-10 split and Catherine Reynolds topped the 5-7 setup. All league scores are figured without handicaps.

Elks' Pitcher Halts Drugmen By 5-1 Margin

Market Nine Clubs Dairy Team; IOOF Clipped by Jaycees

Bobby Dean, used sparingly on the mound this year by the Elks, took full advantage of his starting assignment against Bingham's Drugs last night, turning in a 5-1 four-hit win.

Ward's market got back on the winning trail in the Little League minor division, thumping Blue Ribbon Dairy, 29-3. The Jaycees outdistanced IOOF by a 17-7 count.

Drug hurler Tom Cassill got in trouble after Ted Herron had grounded out to open the tilt. Butch Watson tripled and stole home to give the BPOE outfit a one-run bulge.

Bruce Tigmer doubled for Bingham's in the last of the first, but failed to score as Dean fanned the side. In the second, Bob Walisa doubled and John Funk plated him with a stinging two-bagger for the Elks.

THE CONTEST settled down to a pitcher's duel through the fifth as neither team pushed through a marker. In the top of the sixth Herron rocked Cassill for a double with two away. Watson followed with a single and duplicated his earlier base-running feat by stealing home again.

Dean whacked a double and steamed across as Walisa tripled to close the three-run barrage.

Bingham's threatened briefly in the bottom of the frame as Benzenberg doubled and scored on Tim Stonerock's triple. Dean got losing hurler Cassill to fly out to end the tilt, however.

Bob Tootle lead off with a home run for Ward's and the market squad just kept going. Yeates doubled in the second as they tallied two runs. In the third, Bryce Brown homered and Eric Downing doubled to spark a six-hit, eight-run thrust. The grocers picked up three more in the fourth as Yeates and Jim Mogan singled.

In the fifth Eric Downing and Mogan doubled to help produce six Ward's counters. They closed with a nine-run slugging spectacular as Downing doubled again and Tootle, Yeates, Brown, Funk, Mogan and Mark Downing all hit safely.

Blue Ribbon marked its first tally in the fifth as Moorehead doubled. In the sixth they got two runs without a hit. Tootle was the winner and Castigon absorbed the pounding for the defeat.

JAYCEES jumped off to a 3-2 lead over IOOF after the first inning. The Junior Chamber outfit added eight more in the second as Martin doubled and Allen cracked two singles. Five walks from losing underdog Adams helped the uprising.

After scoring one in the third and another single in the fourth, Jaycees bowed out with a four-run salvo on hits by Ankrom and Sark. IOOF challenged winning pitcher Melson in the sixth frame, marking five runs on as many walks and Fausnaugh's two-bagger, but Melson whiffed Ayers and Grable to end the game.

Ironton Squads Win in Playoff At Lewis Park

American Legion Post No. 590, playing out of Ironton, turned back Calvary Lutheran Church of Chillicothe, 2-1, as Fossett and Lewis doubled for a pair of last-inning counters in the first District Softball Tournament contest last night at Ted Lewis Park.

In the second game, the Chamberlain crew of Ironton blasted Norman's Tavern of Chillicothe by a 9-0 margin.

Tonight marks the beginning of one-game-a-night play in the tourney. Larry's Barber Shop of Laurelville faces Hallsville. The Hallsville squad defeated Tarlton Athletic Club, 4-0, in an earlier play-off tilt.

LL Score Reversed

First National Bank defeated Circleville Oil, 15-4, in a Little League contest at the Fairgrounds Tuesday night. The score had been reversed in the original report.

King Queen of Trotting To Meet Saturday Night

COLUMBUS — The "dream race" of the year is shaping up for Saturday night at nearby Scioto Downs in the $9,300 HTA Trot. Highlight of the current Mid-America Racing Association meeting at Scioto Downs, the HTA Trot is the third leg of the touring trotting series that culminates with a $50,000 final at Yonkers Raceway on Sept. 14.

The "dream" angle of this race comes from the fact this will be the first meeting of the World Champion Elaine Rodney, and the American trotting champion, Merrie Duke.

Elaine Rodney, owned by the S. L. & K. Stable of Eggertsville, N.Y., was crowned the queen of the three-year-old trotters last year after she won the $70,000 Kentucky Futurity at Lexington in the record time of 1:58.3. She came right back this year at her peak form and established a new record for successive wins in an afternoon, with miles in 2:02 and 2:02.2 at Historic Track in Goshen, N.Y. With her Canadian reinsman, Clint Hodgins, in the sulky, this brown daughter of Rodney, captured the first two legs of the touring HTA trotting series. The first was at Brandywine Raceway in 2:03 over a muddy track, and the second at Northville Downs in a blistering 2:02. Both are half-mile tracks.

Merrie Duke, owned by Byron Kuth of Chesterland, Ohio, has already claimed the crown and the title as "king of the trotters" this year. Owner Kuth shelled out $17,500 for the handsome son of Kimberly Kid as a yearling, and his investment is paying off steadily. Last year at Hollywood Park in California, "The Duke," with driver Johnny Patterson in the sulky, posted a best ever mile of 2:00.2. This year he astounded the world of harness racing with a smashing victory in the $70,000 America National Maturity in 2:06 over a muddy track at Sportsman's Park in Chicago.

But Merrie Duke had only started. After he had banked over $34,000 for his Chicago victory, Patterson headed for New York and the American Championship Trot at Roosevelt Raceway that would decide the second United States entry in the famed International Trot. He won it to the surprise of everyone for Merrie Duke had defeated the best trotters in America. In the International Trot on July 15, "The Duke" made a break and finished fifth, and the New York railbirds said "I told you so." But their bragging was short lived. The very next week Merrie Duke won the International Challenge Cup in 2:33.3 defeating the very same field as that in the International Trot including the winner Su Mac Lad, and the Italian entry Macovic. The time for the mile and a quarter was just three-fifths of a second off the record established in 1933 by Florican.

Saturday night, the "king and queen of trotting" will meet at Scioto Downs for the first time. But the MARA at Scioto Downs edition of the HTA Trot drew 12 entries and the remainder of the field reads like a "Who's Who" of trotters.

The lineup:

2. Volo Mon Dancer 15-1
3. Merrie Duke Patterson 3-1

Survey Shows Ad Men Happy, Faithful in Their Marriages

NEW YORK (AP)—Are advertising men lecherous, treacherous, bawdy villains—ingrates who sip martinis with shapely blondes while the supper grows cold on the family stove over in suburbia?

"No, no, no," the man in the gray flannel suit screamed back today. "If you think so you've been reading too many novels. We love our wives."

Madison Avenue made known its feeling in an article called "Do Ad Men Make Good Mates?" in the trade organ "Printers' Ink."

The article said 90 per cent of 383 advertising men surveyed felt their marriages were happy.

So modest were the replies, in fact, that only 10 per cent claimed they were excellent husbands. More than 70 per cent said they were good mates and 18 per cent called themselves fair partners.

More significant, perhaps, was the 31 per cent who indicated wistfully that they would like to be better mates.

A large number found their wives warm and considerate.

"My wife is afraid that job demands, such as customer entertainment, are likely to make me an alcoholic."

One member of what may very well be one of the world's most self-analytic businesses hinted maybe his own mate took those stories about advertising men too literally.

He reported he and his wife had a problem over her "suspicions of infidelity associated with travel and job hours."

Then really getting down to the heart of the matter—really running up the flag and saluting, so maybe things weren't all good, good, good for ad wives.

"We tend to marry more intelligent, better-educated women, and then wonder why they are not deliriously happy."

'MOST PRIZED POSSESSIONS'—History repeats in Weinsberg, West Germany, as the womenfolk carry their men out of town on their backs. The rite dates from the year 1140, when the city was under siege and the attacker gave the women permission to leave with their most prized possessions on their backs. They pulled a trick—they carried their men to freedom and away from certain death. Here the German Archers Club re-enacts the exodus.

Lard Rationed By New Cuban Castro Regime

HAVANA (AP)—The key word in Cuba today is "manteca." Translated from the Spanish it means lard, or fats.

Manteca—or lack of it — has presented Fidel Castro's revolutionary regime with a sticky problem. For the first time in its 2½-year history, the regime has had to impose rationing.

Families are restricted to one pound of lard and one pound of cooking oil monthly for each person above the age of one year. This is going to hurt. Cubans normally consume an extraordinarily large amount of fat.

The government places the blame on "American economic aggression" for the present embarrassing situation, claiming the United States is maintaining an unannounced embargo against exports of lard to Cuba. The United States has traditionally been the sole supplier of Cuba, selling this country 98,000 tons a year.

Shipments of lard from the United States have ceased or practically ceased. Some, however, suspect that Cuba's dollar shortage may have as much to do with this as any real or imagined embargo.

Indictment Names Slayer of Wife

CINCINNATI (AP)—The Hamilton County Grand Jury has returned a second-degree murder indictment against Charles Mulcahy, 45, in the fatal stabbing on June 13 of his estranged wife, Dorothy, 41, a cafe entertainer.

A second indictment, charged cutting with intent to kill, also was returned against Mulcahy. That was in connection with the serious wounding of John Waggoner, 34, a Lacrosse, Wis. businessman who was stabbed as he went to Mrs. Mulcahy's aid.

Mulcahy will be arraigned in Criminal Court Friday.

The stabbings occurred in a parking garage opposite from a downtown hotel shortly after Mrs. Mulcahy had completed her first night of work in a cocktail lounge in the hotel.
